Next Tuesday's election has baker's dozen of hot issues

While no local, state or federal offices are up for grabs, next Tuesday's election will nevertheless be important for area voters. At stake are bond issues, which—if passed—will add $440 million to the state's indebtedness, plus an estimated $71 million in interest.

In addition to the bond proposals, there are also two citizen-proposed initiatives: one proposing public financing for gubernatorial elections; the other seeking a halt in the federal government's testing of U.S. Navy cruise missiles over Maine. Also, there is a proposed amendment to the State Constitution that would give the Legislature the authority to borrow up to $25 million to ensure the payment of mortgages by Maine citizens purchasing affordable housing.

Lastly, there is referendum question asking voters if they wish to ratify a contract with the Rocky Mountain Low-Level Waste Board that would allow waste to be shipped to Nevada, if necessary, from Jan. 1, 1990 to Dec. 31, 1992.

The questions on the ballot are printed below:

DEP promises get-tough policy on dioxin polluters

The Department of Environmental Protection is pursuing a dioxin control strategy that should have new licensing requirements in place by early next year for seven bleach kraft paper mills.

The plan developed from the discovery of high levels of dioxin in fish taken from the Androscoggin River. That discovery, in 1987, generated concern over the state of other Maine rivers and the impact that the paper bleaching process was having on public health and the environment.

DEP's strategy has been to address those concerns from a technological as well as a health-risk perspective. The former sparked a study of plant and procedural changes available to reduce the discharge of dioxin from bleach kraft mills.

The information will enable the department to define "best practicable treatment" (BPT) control standards for most operations of this type in Maine. Their new discharge licenses will require compliance with BPT levels before June 4, 1992.

The perspective on health concerns will involve a review of dioxin control recommendations to be made by the Department of Human Services. In Public storage planned on Rte. 26

Gary Savage Jr., whose parents own the Beller Room Restaurant, in Bryant Pond, plans to build a 26-unit public storage facility on Rte. 26, between Bethel and Locke Mills, just past Chandler Hill Road, on the flat between the York and Angerville properties (the west side of the road).

He told the Bethel Planning Board last Wednesday night his parents would manage the facility. The units, which would be large enough to accommodate a car or boat, would rent for about $70, he said.

The structure itself would be all wood—not the metal prefab used in most such buildings—and would be well-lighted on the outside. There would be no electric outlets inside.

To be called Commodore Storage, the facility would measure 33-feet by 105-feet.

Mr. Savage said he hopes to get the concrete foundation poured this month, if he secures Planning Board approval. Last week was the first time the board saw the Site Plan Permit application and took no action. However, they saw no major problems with the plan.

In other matters, the board dealt very leniently with the question of parking at a Main Street business. The business in question was Skidder's Deli and Wood's Glass studio—a combination of retail outlets that plans to open shortly in the space that had been the Edelweiss Country Store.

Deer hunt season starts

Deer season opened last weekend and many local families said goodbye to deer who headed out to hunting camps for the annual fall pilgrimage.

Those returning with kills, as of yesterday (Tuesday) morning, were tabulated as follows at local bagging stations:

- Brown's Mobil, Bethel—7 deer;
- Bob's Store, Locke Mills—9 deer;
- Trap Corner Store, West Paris—7 deer, including a 222-lb buck shot by Tim Poland;
- Mills Market, Andover—1 deer.

NEAR MISS—Telstar attackers Amy Hannon, Shilo Hutchins and Kristi Clement see this foray go just wide, in quarterfinal playoff action last Wednesday against Dirigo. But a single score later in the game was all the Rebels would need—as their stingy defense once again shut out their opponents. The 1-0 victory over Dirigo was followed by a 3-0 thrashing of Traip Academy on Saturday, earning the Rebels a shot against undefeated Yarmouth for the Western Maine Class C Championship.

Telstar stickers in Yarmouth for championship

For the second time in a little over two years, the Telstar field hockey team travels to the state today (Wednesday) to play for the Western Maine Class C Championship.

The girls will play top seeded, and undefeated, Yarmouth for the right to proceed on to the Class C state championship game on Saturday.

The game (postponed from yesterday because of rain) set up as a clash of defensive giants. Yarmouth has allowed only six goals all year; Telstar has allowed only five. Neither team has given up a goal in post-season action.

At the other end of the field, both teams have proven they can put the ball in the goal—Yarmouth scoring over 40 goals, Telstar over 30.

Two years ago, another strong Telstar squad also went into the championship game without allowing their playoff opponents to score a goal. That year the Rebels defeated Yarmouth 2-0 in the Western Maine Class C quarterfinal round, then held off Dirigo for two full games and six overtimes on the way to a 1-0 semifinal victory.

The Rebels then journeyed to Freeport, where they held the home team scoreless through a game and one overtime.

But in the deepening darkness of a second overtime period, Freeport broke through the exhausted Rebel line for the game's only goal, and the championship. Young, balanced and talented—this

School board to consider weighted-grading policy

At its regular meeting next Monday evening, the SAD #44 Board of Directors will formally consider whether to adopt weighted grades in determining class rank at Telstar Regional High School.

The board's policy committee has recommended that such a policy be adopted. The specific policy proposed by the committee would award eight extra points for each advanced placement course successfully completed by a student.

To earn the points, the student must earn a grade of 70 or better in the course. The points would be used only for

Math meet Thursday at Telstar Middle School

Telstar Middle School will be the setting for the Sandy-Andy Math Meet, Thursday, Nov. 2. Top math students from 12 schools are expected to participate in this competition.

When the students are not doing math tests, there will be time to socialize with students from other schools. Refreshments will be provided by parents and volunteers in the community.

Elaine Dresser is the coordinator for this event and the Telstar coach. Telstar students participating in the event include: Grade 6—Anneliese Bass, Leah Bonnera, Lydia Grover, Amanda Sysko, Clinton Wakefield; Grade 7—Kendra Hutchinson, Nancy Morgan, Kevin Mulley, Leah Richardson, Laura Seames; Grade 8—Sarah Coolidge, Melissa Howe, Jamie Lewis, Robin Palmer, Phoebe Hausman-Rogers.

MCI appeals tax ruling; Blue Rock denies fault in paving East B Hill Rd.

Andover selectmen were notified prior to their Thursday meeting that MCI filed just at the deadline to appeal the 1988 tax ruling that found in the town's favor, and the 1989 tax assessment.

Guy Melcher, of Blue Rock Industries, met with the selectmen in regard to the unsatisfactory resurfacing of East B Hill Road. Selectman Fred Emerson said that problems exist even after four to five weeks when the road is wet, and that the surface should be "flexible, but not disintegrating."

"It's in worse shape than it was before," he said, also citing the gravel trucks that use the road have made the situation worse.

Mr. Melcher agreed that a section was not curing as fast as it should, and his crew would do a sand seal if necessary. He also agreed to hot top patches as it provides a better bond. With these concessions he also said he was not admitting doing anything wrong on the job.

Mr. Melcher will survey the road on Monday with Road Commissioner Wilbur Chenevix and Selectman Emerson.

Richard Dubois, Mark Burlamachi and Richard Cayer confronted Mr. Melcher with damage done to their vehicles due to tar from the road. Mr. Dubois brought estimates for cleaning two vehicles.

Mr. Melcher said the road was marked "Pass at your own risk," eliminating his liability. He did offer each of the parties a settlement for $40 for cleaning their vehicles, which they did not accept. At

CAN SKI SEASON BE VERY FAR AWAY?—Despite the summer-like weather the past week (with highs near 80), the Bethel Outing Club's pre-season ski sale at the Gould Academy Fieldhouse drew tremendous crowds Friday night and Saturday. In its ninth year, the annual sale has become a highlight of the fall season. Hundreds of buyers, browsers and socializers turned out to exchange equipment and chitchat, and to help underwrite local youngsters' skiing and training.

Legislature not doing its job

Once again the Legislature has turned over to the citizenry the work the taxpayers pay the Legislature to do—that is, make decisions on how to spend money.

Each election the Legislature asks the voters to make the hard decisions the lawmakers find it uncomfortable to deal with. This is not to say the voters should not be consulted on some issues. Certainly, when it comes to capital improvements, where bonded indebtedness is called for, the voters must have the final say.

But next week's ballot is filled with operational expenditures that should have been handled during the regular session of the Legislature.

In addition to shirking its duty by asking voters to approve too many bonds, the Legislature also provides the Secretary of State's office with no concrete information to put on the ballot, except for the dollar amounts. Unless a voter has been following an issue, he or she would have little idea of the Legislature's plan for spending the money it's asking to borrow.

With these general points notwithstanding, here is the way The Citizen views the ballot questions:

1. Public money for gubernatorial campaigns: If passed, this initiative would allow a candidate for governor to receive matching funds ($2 for each $1 raised by the campaign) from the public for both the primary and general election. A candidate who accepts matching funds would have to limit his or her spending to $400,000 in the primary and $600,000 in the general election.

While the goal of keeping the top job in the state from going to the person who can spend the most money on a campaign is laudable, this is not the way to do it. A candidate's ability to raise funds says a lot about his or her clout and popularity and should not be unduly restricted. In order to ensure that campaign fundraising doesn't get out of hand, the Secretary of State should require prompt reports on fundraising by candidates, and should distribute those reports to the press, with notations on the biggest contributors. As it is now, the candidates don't have to file some of their fundraising reports until well after the election.

2. Resolution against cruise missile testing: If passed, this resolution would direct the governor to try to persuade the Pentagon to end the cruise missile tests over the state.

When the Pentagon threatens to close Loring Air Force Base or take away a Navy shipbuilding contract from Bath Iron Works and give it to a yard in Mississippi, Mainers are among the most patriotic citizens in the Republic. But when the Pentagon sends an unarmed cruise missile over rural Maine, arguments crop up that it's bad for the environment. Are the jets that fly out of Loring good for environment?

The difference, of course, is the money. Mainers make no moonah off cruise missile tests. That doesn't mean they're not necessary. The cruise missile is a relatively cheap and accurate vehicle. It can be used with conventional as well as nuclear warheads—and, as a matter of fact, the Navy program calls for 80 percent of the missiles to have conventional warheads. Until international treaties are signed outlawing such missiles, the U.S. needs to continue the development program—and Maine is as good a place as any—and better than most—for the testing.

3. Borrowing to pay for prison facilities: This bond issue has two parts. Part A asks voters to authorize borrowing $14.5 million for construction and renovation of seven correctional institutions. Most of the money would go to three: $4.5 for repairs at Maine State Prison; $5 million for repairs at the Maine Youth Center; and $4.5 million for construction of a juvenile detention facility in northern Maine.

Although most of this money probably should have been allocated from the prisons repair account, the spending is clearly needed and the $14.5 million bond should be authorized.

Part B seeks authorization to borrow $35 million to construct additional maximum security cells.

Although prison officials argue that their most dangerous prisoners are packed too tightly, it is clear that the state is not making the best use of its prison facilities. There is generally lots of extra cell space in the county jails, and the State prison system used to regularly house short-termers and minimum security prisoners in these jails. However, when the Legislature decided to put drunk drivers into jail cells, these extra spaces disappeared.

One solution to the overcrowding in the state prison system is to use the county jails. Move the drunk drivers to schools or armories.

Another solution is to have supervised probation for non-violent convicted criminals. Building a Hilton Hotel for criminals is not the best use of scarce taxpayer dollars.

4. Borrowing for recycling: This question asks voters to authorize borrowing $5 million so the newly created Maine Waste Management Agency can give grants to municipalities to set up recycling centers.

This is a waste of money. Towns are already setting up recycling centers because such facilities will save them money in hauling and tipping fees at incinerator plants or landfills. What the state needs to do is find markets for the recycled materials, as well as find new landfills for what cannot be recycled.

And, in fact, the Legislature has already funded such activities. The lawmakers allocated $8.5 million for the current biennium to promote recycling, recycling and integrated management of solid waste.

5. Money for the Vo-Tech System: This question asks voters to authorize the borrowing of $20 million for capital expenditures at the various Vo-Tech campuses. This would be money well spent. No question about it.

6. Sewer funding: This question asks voters to authorize the borrowing of $4.4 million for constructing sewerage facilities.

The money would be given to coastal communities that are now dumping raw sewage into bays. If the State were to come up with a revolving fund that could be borrowed by any community in need of sewer repairs (such as Bethel), that would be a good program. But this is just a giveaway to the wealthier part of the state. It should be defeated.

7. Highway construction and repair: This question asks voters to authorize the borrowing of $21 million in order to receive federal matching funds—in the amount of $51 million—for highway, bridge, airport and harbor improvements.

BURYING MONEY? Not really, but almost. The T. Buck Construction crew began digging holes last week at Bethel's sewer plant for the two new clarifiers. The existing plant can be seen at the right rear. The clarifiers and allied work will cost the town $860,000, plus interest, less whatever grants can be obtained. The upgrading of the existing system is supposed to increase the sewage-handling capacity of the plant to 309,000 gallons per day. Two weekends ago, during the very wet weather, the plant—with the existing clarifiers but new pumps—handled 275,000 gallons per day. Nevertheless, 100,000 gallons of sewage still had to bypass the plant and go straight to the river. During wet weather, water infiltrates the sewer lines and overloads the plant. At the recent special town meeting, a number of voters questioned why the sewer commissioners were proposing repairing the plant before repairing the leaking sewer mains.

This is the best way of getting a hand from the feds for the state's transportation system and should be passed. Too bad it doesn't include money for resurrecting the decaying rail lines.

8. Funds for mental health facilities: This bond for $7 million, if authorized, would provide money for construction and capital equipment purchases by the Maine State Housing Authority and the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

The Citizen has no information on exactly how this money will be used and can offer no opinion.

9. Money for asbestos removal: This question asks voters to authorize borrowing $12 million to clean up asbestos and other hazardous substances at state facilities.

This question is a regular on referendum ballots. It should be tossed back to the Legislature since it is not a capital project but rather a maintenance item.

10. Money for closing landfills that could affect the purity of groundwater: The question seeks authorization to borrow $6 million to be used for grants to municipalities that need to close such landfills.

As in the question on sewer system grants, the state would do much better by setting up a revolving account that municipalities could borrow from at little or no interest and then repay.

11. Money for affordable housing: This question seeks authorization to borrow $15 million for affordable housing. The money would be spent as follows: $4 million for grants and low-interest loans to municipalities; $5 million to acquire land for affordable housing; $3 million to preserve existing affordable housing; $1 million to capitalize the Mortgage Insurance Fund administered by the Maine State Housing Authority.

The State of Maine has some of the very best programs for helping people to purchase housing. This bond money would fund new, innovative ways of developing affordable housing. For example, the $4 million set aside for municipalities would help fund sewer extensions and other infrastructure work. This is just the sort of help Bethel needs to accommodate the housing project proposed for Mason Street. This question should be supported.

12. Constitutional amendment: This amendment would give the Legislature the authority to appropriate funds and authorize the issuance of bonds to insure mortgages issued homeowners taking part in state affordable housing programs.

It is unwise to give legislators the authority to borrow money.

13. Referendum: This question asks voters to approve a contract already worked out by the governor with the Rocky Mountain Low-level Radioactive Waste Board. The agreement would allow Maine producers of low-level radioactive wastes—such as the rags and tools from Maine Yankee and the containers, etc. from hospitals and research labs—to ship those wastes to a site in Nevada, if necessary, during 1990, 1991 and 1992. The producers of the wastes would pay all costs associated with shipping and disposal. This agreement has nothing to do with the high level wastes being produced by Maine Yankee. That is a problem the federal Department of Energy is still wrestling with.

Sen. Cohen says...

While chairman of the Federal Communications Commission in 1961, Newton Minow dubbed television a "vast wasteland." But he might look more kindly on the medium these days if he spent some time in Maine.

In a move that has put our state in the forefront of American education, the University of Maine has added classrooms in 47 cities and towns—from Wells to Van Buren (and including Bethel)—where students can view classes on television and participate in classroom discussion.

This innovative approach was prompted by the fact that two-thirds of the state's population lives more than 20 miles from one of the university's seven campuses; so administrators this year decided to bring the university to the students.

Many classes are now broadcast live, and students can telephone professors from local high schools and community centers to ask questions or comment on lectures. Afterwards, they can send in required assignments by mail.

Up to 2,500 students at the remote sites can take courses in everything from "Foundations in Western Civilization" to "Criminal Investigation." The curriculum includes offerings that range from vocational-technical training to courses at the bachelor's and graduate levels.

Microwave transmission and fiber-optic cable link television sets at each site to the classrooms on campus. For students who miss a class or want to review, all classes are recorded on videotape and can be replayed.

In Ellsworth, about 80 students are taking courses at the Boggy Brook Regional Vocational Center. And on North Haven Island, 12 miles off the coast, 23 year-round residents are enrolled in 18 courses. Two teachers at the island's community school are doing graduate work, and one woman is finishing up bachelor's degree requirements after spending three years away from home on the Orono campus.

The youngest person enrolled in the state program is a 7th-grader from Rumford, who is taking a college French course. And the oldest is a 52-year-old woman from Houlton, who had always wanted to attend college but never did. Within five years, the television system will be serving 10,000 students, according to university officials. By 1994, they hope, the program will be expanded to approximately 250 sites, including every high school in the state.

Maine's interactive television system is a fine example of putting technology

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, Nov. 7, Maine voters will be asked to approve a $20.1 million bond issue for critical capital improvements at the six campuses of the Maine Vocational-Technical Institute System. As sponsor of the legislation that sent the bond issue to referendum, I would urge your readers to go to the polls and cast a Yes vote on Question 5.

The VTIS—recently renamed technical colleges—have a vital role to play in ensuring that Maine's workforce meets changing economic needs. Experts predict that by the year 2,000, three-quarters of today's workers will require re-education and retraining. Our VTIS, therefore, must continue to develop programs that are responsive to the changing needs of Maine's students, workers, and employers.

The Maine VTI system can no longer serve all the students desiring employment. In fact, this fall the system placed nearly 250 qualified applicants on waiting lists because programs were filled. And VTI officials estimate that as many as 1,000 students withdrew applications because they were destined to be placed on waiting lists.

The only thing preventing expansion of many of those programs is lack of classroom space. The bond issue, if approved, would finance construction of new classroom facilities at several of the campuses, thus enabling the system to serve more students.

I am optimistic that once Maine voters learn just how critical this bond issue is, they will throw their support behind it—as the Legislature did. Among the proposed improvements are:

- At CMVTI in Auburn, the bond issue would provide $4.5 million for a new allied health center to house the institute's rapidly expanding nursing, allied health, and occupational health and safety programs. The building would include space for science labs and classrooms to support each of these programs, including the Center for Occupational Health and Safety—the first of its kind in Maine. Additionally, the allied health center would enable CMVTI to expand enrollment in its associate-degree nursing and practical nursing programs.

- Other programs that would be developed or expanded include the medical lab technician program, the certified nurse assistant program, and other customized health training programs. The new facility would also allow CMVTI to serve more students in supervisory management and computer technology, and to establish a child-care center that would accommodate 30 to 35 children.

- In all, CMVTI would be able to serve approximately 900 additional full- and part-time students through this one center. The bond issue would also finance an expansion of parking facilities at the Auburn campus.

- At EMVTI in Bangor, the Diamond Building would undergo $1.2 million worth of renovations, enabling an additional 540 students to be served. Among its other benefits, the renovation would allow EMVTI to offer a refrigeration and air conditioning program, and would provide space for a welding certification and training center. In addition, the renovation would enable EMVTI to participate in the University of Maine System's Interactive TV (ITV) program, which would broadcast customized training and traditional programs statewide.

- At Fairfield's KVVTI, the largest project would be construction of a new classroom/conference facility. At a cost of $3.2 million, the new facility would allow for the expansion of health programs, including the associate-degree nursing program, the practical nursing program, the CNA program, and the physical therapy assistant program.

- In addition, the facility would allow KVVTI to expand customized courses in respiratory therapy certification and medical-records technician training; provide several levels of training in emergency medical services; expand the customized lineworker-technician program; offer a computerized accounting program; expand the word-processing center; and expand the microcomputer program.

- Finally, the facility would provide space for an Interactive TV lab to be used in conjunction with the University of Maine ITV system.

- In all, the new classroom/conference center would serve an additional 1,250 students.

- The bond issue also would provide funds for KVVTI to extend a parking lot, renovate its bookstore, make safety improvements to the electronics shop, and expand the child care center to double its current 15 slots to 30.

- At NMVTI in Presque Isle, the bond issue would provide $2 million for a new instruction/administration building. The facility would provide space for: three classrooms; a laboratory; and administrative offices for student services, the business office, continuing education, instruction, and the director of the Institute. Additionally, the building would house shipping and receiving functions and the institute's bookstore.

- Eventually, the Maine VTI System's Manufacturing Technology Center also would be established in the facility. The new building would serve an additional 1,082 students.

- The bond issue would provide $1.4 million for a new residence hall, which would offer housing for an additional 50 to work to break down barriers to education and to extend the reach of our schools. Clearly, its interest was approaching increasing access to the classroom will benefit many Mainers in the years ahead.

To the Editor:

After reading the column, "Ask a Lawyer..." dealing with certain matters of real estate in your Oct. 11 issue, I have one quote to offer, and one question to ask.

Jean-Jacques Rousseau in his "Discourse on the Origin of Inequality" said:

"The first man, who after inclosing a piece of ground, took it into his head to say, this is mine, and found people simple enough to believe him, was the real founder of civil society. How many crimes, how many wars, how many murders, how many misfortunes and horrors would that man have saved the human species, who, pulling up the stakes or filling up the ditches, should have cried to his fellows: Beware of listening to this impostor; you are lost, if you forget that the fruits of the earth belong equally to us all, and the earth itself to nobody."

If, indeed, "The views expressed in this column are those of the author..." why isn't the author given a byline or otherwise identified?

Wayne Lord, Sr.
The editor replies: Normally the author of those columns is identified. That particular week the name was left off for lack of space.

To the Editor:

We see all kinds of photos from other schools but not too many from the local ones, like Telstar, EBS, CFS. I know that some have been taken and sent in. It would be nice to see them printed.

Loretta Berry
Editor's note: The Citizen prints as many photos from local schools—including Gould, Agnes Grey, Woodstock and Andover—as space permits. And there are usually more photos than space. This means that sometimes photos will be taken at a school but not used. On average, most of the photos in the paper are from Telstar, EBS and CFS.

resident students at NMVTI. Currently, the campus has the capacity to house 201 resident students, while requests for housing average 348 per year.

Additionally, NMVTI would receive funding for: site development; demolition of the old electronics building; demolition of the old laundry building; landscaping after foundation removal; and roof replacement of Andrews Hall.

- The major project slated for South Portland's SMVTI is the construction of a $2.75 million Hospitality Center, which would serve an additional 2,500 students with: an expanded hotel/motel restaurant management program; expanded training in security; housekeeping; computer applications; and customer service training programs. In addition, the center will allow SMVTI to conduct courses at satellite locations in York County. The bond issue would also provide money for the acquisition of property and for building renovations and additions.

- At WCVTI in Calais, the bond issue would finance a $2.2 million multi-purpose center, which would provide space for nursing programs, the heavy equipment operation program, the continuing education department, the ITV center, conference rooms and office space, and recreation. The center would serve an additional 1,033 part- and full-time students.

- The bond issue would also enable WCVTI to make pier improvements and roof repairs.

In conclusion, it is important to note that although the Maine Vocational-Technical Institute System has been completely independent of the state Department of Educational and Cultural Services only since July of 1988, the benefits of its autonomy and financial independence can already be seen.

Placement figures—proof positive that the system is working—show that, on average, 90 percent of VTI graduates are placed in jobs; and of those, more than 90 percent are placed in Maine. Such statistics clearly indicate that VTI students are learning the skills they need to obtain long-term, well-paying jobs that, perhaps most importantly, allow them to continue to live and work in Maine.

The VTI System's ability to meet the needs of the growing number of so-called "non-traditional" students, including displaced workers, women, older workers, and the handicapped is, I believe, of particular importance. For these students, as well as for recent high school graduates, the VTIS provide an essential alternative to a university education.

Last year, Maine voters approved a $36.8 million bond issue for capital improvements within the University of Maine System. Now, it is my sincere hope that voters will demonstrate a similar commitment to our VTIS, institutions with an equally important role to play in educating our citizens.

The improvements I have outlined will allow the Maine Vocational-Technical Institute System to serve about 7,300 additional students, the majority of whom will put their skills to use as vital members of the state's workforce.

On Nov. 7, please vote Yes on Question 5.

Letters

To the Editor:

(This is a copy of a letter sent to the Bethel Postmaster.)
I am a tax-paying resident of Bethel, who lives within an eighth-of-a-mile [sic] from the Bethel Post Office, and yet I am not privy to a service that other taxpayers enjoy—that of United States Postal delivery—though mailboxes are available and more would be provided if need be.

When I inquired as to why I could not receive mail at Eden Ridge, a variety of reasons were offered, none of which I feel are valid. One of the reasons given by the Post Office locally was that the ascending road at Eden Ridge was too steep and for this very reason the Post Office has chosen not to deliver to the residents. They also commented that the Town of Bethel does not recognize the road, thus they do not have an obligation to service the area.

Let's be reasonable. From where I sit at the top of the Ridge I daily watch the residents of Bethel enjoy the Eden Ridge road as they walk, run, jog, bike and—yes—even train for special sporting events in the area. This past winter people also skied and snowmobiled the road. Also, I might add, that since last January I have seen a considerable amount of traffic go by my window that did not originate from the Eden Ridge units, for indeed they were merely people who choose to use the Eden Ridge road as a shortcut. Certainly we at the Ridge were quite reasonable and did not complain of all the activity on this "non-public" road.

With all this going on, I simply cannot understand why the Bethel Post Office will not deliver mail. When we moved here from New York last January, we had doubts also about the road, but I can assure you that not one day since Jan. 10 was the road impassible; thus I see no reason we are withheld mail delivery.

"Perhaps it is a misconception that prevails that we that live here are all renters. This is not true as we are retired federal employees who chose to live here over many other areas, and we bought our home."

It has been said our mail can be delivered by the builder in his box, but I don't think that is the builder's responsibility either.

Whether it is one resident or 51 residents, we all have the right to receive our mail as taxpayers in a community, and it is my wish that this is resolved in the near future.

To the Editor:

If voters approve Question 4, the $5 million bond issue to support recycling programs, Maine will be well on its way to setting up a statewide network of local recycling programs. The great majority of pay for buildings, trucks, balers, recycling bins or curbside containers, and other processing equipment—the up-front costs of recycling.

Maine needs aggressive recycling programs. Two garbage incinerators, in Orono and Biddeford, are in financial trouble, and they don't have anywhere to take their toxic ash. One commercial landfill, in Norridgewock, was recently devastated by a landslide of garbage, which opened crevasses 60 feet deep and exposed 10-year old garbage. Many towns throughout Maine are closing their leaky landfills but have no alternative site for disposing of their solid waste. Recycling won't solve all of Maine's problems, but it can vastly reduce the amount of garbage that needs to be disposed of in incinerators and landfills.

Last spring, people from all over the state contacted us because we're a citizen-supported environmental organization and we'd been working on recycling for several years. People asked how they could help to promote recycling. We advised them to start with organizing a recycling program in their town, and to tell their legislators to vote for a statewide law to support recycling. Legislators, who were already concerned about the rising costs of garbage disposal and the lack of viable alternatives to landfilling and incineration, listened to their townspeople. They passed a strong law that sets goals for recycling 25 percent of Maine's waste by 1992 and 50 percent by 1994.

Town programs and regional cooperation are two of the cornerstones of the new program. Programs must be local, so people can easily participate in them, and regional, so that towns can work together to take advantage of the economies of scale. Small towns may have trouble selling mixed paper, for example, or be unable to afford baling machines. But if towns in the same area work together, they can pool resources and creative ideas—as well as mixed paper—and develop more successful programs.

The key is getting the up-front money to towns, so that communities can set up local programs that make sense.

Vote Yes for Question 4, the proposal for a $5 million bond issue to support recycling. It's in everyone's best interest.

I have been reading a summary of the new Forest Practices Act. It seems that Maine's agencies are not bound by the U.S. Constitution. They are required to allow public input on proposed rules, but no vote by either the public or the legislature. "Any rule adopted is intended to have the same legal force of law as a statute."

Whoever thought that we would see laws churned out by bureaucratic edict in America? When these agencies are also given the power to impose fines and/or imprisonment, we will have full-

To the Editor:

The Chamber of Commerce's hysterical attack on Merton Brown for a chance remark is utterly ridiculous. To carry this vendetta to the press is demeaning to the Chamber as a body, undermining the service they have done the community. The picture of a disgruntled, petulant child certainly doesn't fit the Chamber in any way.

To suggest that Mr. Lynch is incapable of controlling his staff without outside direction is an insult to him and his position as town manager. It's uncalled for and very, very tacky.

Merton, as you sit on the steps of the town office in chains, please don't scream. There's a town ordinance against noise pollution.

Dot Murphy

Editor's note: As I told Mrs. Murphy, the information in last week's Note from the Publisher did not come from the Chamber. It should also be kept in mind that the column was not about the comments the town clerk was quoted as making to Dave Silverbrand but about the fact that the selectmen dealt with the matter behind closed doors.

The Rear-end Admiral Poindexter Defense Fund... what a concept! (See Citizen, Oct. 18.) If only Bethel citizens could solicit such money for our own rear-end problems.

Here we are knee-deep in sewage problems and Mr. Poindexter is trying to get us neck-high. Does he really expect that disregard for the democratic process and the Constitution should be rewarded? His appeal for money is insulting.

For those citizens who feel compelled to support a truly worthy cause, please, send $5, $50, $100, or $500—or why not just write us into your trust fund? Checks should be payable to: Bethel's Admirable Rear-end fund.

To the Editor:

Getting tough on crime is one thing, and is a very timely and powerful issue. All of us here at the [Maine State] prison surprisingly agree with other citizens on the outside. The only difference is that we have on our side the knowledge gained by experience and exposure to the truths and untruths that are secretly kept from, or disguised [for], the public.

Our corrupt prosecution system, in conspiracy with the courts, has determined that merely by increasing the number of convictions, regardless of one's innocence, will pacify the unknown and unsuspecting public, and through its perpetuation establish a false illusion of justice done.

We assure you this is all you as taxpayers are getting—just an illusion. In truth and fact, here at Thomaston alone (one of many correctional institutions in the state) with a full present population of about 400, one quarter, 25 percent, are in reality political prisoners. We are because we are probably innocent, wrongfully convicted, denied due process, denied access to the courts, denied adequate and effective counsel, and denied our Constitutional rights—rights that no longer exist in the courts of this police state of Maine.

Two [issues] in particular: the presumption of innocence, and the grossly and vigorously misused, probable cause issue. One hundred thirty of us here, all innocent, all provably so, are demanding new trials, fair ones this time. In fact, enough evidence exists to warrant the immediate release of these men and the instant reversal of their wrongful convictions. This justice would also eliminate the so-called overcrowding here as well, but that is another story of lies and deceptions on the part of the corrupt state, courts, and institutions.

Someone has got to let the public know what is going on. You are not being told the truth by those you are led to or supposed to believe. I am not afraid of exposing this evil, and I pray this fine paper has the courage and commitment to the truth to let its readers also know, and hopefully further investigate.

I strongly urge you all not to vote for the prison bond issue. It is totally unneeded and unnecessary. The system is artificially being kept overcrowded by not filling the 178 open intensive supervision slots, and not implementing other solutions already mandated or approved by the Legislature. Just one being the Governor's signing of the retroactive parole bill. We in Maine are one of only a few states without a parole system, and 26 years behind the time.

The other important thing we could do to correct the inadequacies and the numerous illegalities in our courts, would be to voice your opinion strongly in favor of allowing cameras and recorders in our courtrooms. The system would then have to clean up its act, and that is all we have now is an act, complete with dictated script from our prosecutors, and their leader in Augusta. It is high time we once again had government and justice, for the people, of the people, and by the people.

I thank you one and all and God bless you all.

Selectman Emerson's suggestion, the parties agreed to meet on Monday for further private discussion. Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Jane Rich, stressed that she felt the town was not involved in the dispute, and the parties' insurance companies should be contacted.

Calvin Baker has been named dog officer. Residents with problems may call him after 5 p.m., at 392-4861. At earlier times, leave a message to have him call back.

The board decided against getting involved with water problems at the post office and also tabled a decision about plowing the area.

Fire Chief Kenneth Dixon appeared before the board as a result of a letter from the Maine Fire Chiefs Association protesting a new law that makes any municipal employer in authority who subjects those under him to unsafe conditions, resulting in death, to be guilty of manslaughter. He urged the selectmen to help repeat this, and they are writing to do so.

Mr. Dixon said, "In firefighting, particularly, how can you send someone in to a building and know that it's safe?"

Mr. Dixon also complained to the selectmen about installation by Community Energy of a fuel tank at the fire station, stating it is too high off the dirt floor, and that the piping will have to be rearranged.

In other water and sewer problems, every effort is being made to have the Town Hall in proper shape for the Saturday dance.

Residents have contacted the Bureau of Taxation about a disputed assessment on a trailer, and the town will take any action necessary when they are notified by the bureau.

Seven applications have been received for the advertised position of highway department worker, and there have been many questions about the position. The position would start Dec. 1; hours would be at the discretion of the road commissioner. It will be decided April 1 as to whether the position would be permanent. A decision will be made on the applicants at the next meeting, as well as the salary to be offered.

Letters Policy

The Citizen loves to receive letters. They may be on any subject of interest and on any side of any issue. Letters to be considered for publication must be signed and should have the phone number of the letter-writer so that, in case there are any questions, the letter-writer can be contacted.

While, generally, letters are printed as written, the editor reserves the right to edit any letter for clarity, length, grammar and spelling, factuality, and decency. Letters meant for publication in The Citizen office by Monday noon.

Planning Board

The project—which had earlier been envisioned as simply a dell—had been declared a continuation of the same sort of business the Edelweiss had been doing and therefore the board had earlier ruled that no permit was needed. That was the same determination the board made when it ruled two years ago the clothing store in the same building was basically the same sort of business as the gift store that had been there earlier.

But with the addition of the art studios to the plan, the board decided a site plan permit was necessary. Don Feeney was the lone board member to publicly disagree with this finding, saying the store would still be doing a retail business and would not require a permit. Co-owner Kevin McMahon agreed. "It's not that significant a change." But the majority of the board disagreed.

With the project coming under the purview of the Site Plan Ordinance, it—and, in fact the whole building in which it is located—had to meet stringent parking regulations. The number of parking spaces required for the number of apartments and businesses in the building totals 11. Planning Assistant Rockie Graham told the board. Since there were only six on the property (between the building and the Prim's building), there was a deficit of five spaces.

The board quickly moved to grant a variance for the five missing spaces. (Main Street business interests, including The Citizen, have previously complained that the Site Plan Review Ordinance makes no allowance for street parking and therefore tends to stifle commercial development in the village.) The vote on the variance was 7-0, with a stipulation that no additional parking variances would be granted to that building.

Mr. McMahon complained to the board that the permit application process is too cumbersome and costly for a small business. He said the entire process, including a required survey, had cost him $700, plus untold hours of work. "I don't think it was worth it in time or money," he said.

In other matters, the board unanimously approved a minor amendment to Bethel's Acres subdivision, on the East Bethel Road. The subdivision has three lots, which were somewhat changed in size by the amendment.

The board also voted to hold a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the Subdivision Regulations. The proposed amendment reads:

"After Nov. 15, failure to complete substantial construction on the subdivision of five or more lots (or less than five lots if it requires a road or roads to be constructed) within two years of the date of approval and signing of the plan shall render the plan null and void. (Substantial construction is defined as 80 percent.) Upon determining that a subdivision approval has expired under this paragraph, the Planning Board shall have notice placed in the Registry of Deeds to that effect. A one-year extension on the time limit may be granted, with cause, by a majority vote of the Planning Board."

The public hearing is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 8.

In other action, the board decided to reschedule its Nov. 22 meeting to Nov. 29. Also, it decided to cancel altogether its Dec. 27 meeting.

Newry selectman resigns

Newry Selectman Roger Hanscom, who has been in a nursing home in Rumford the past few months, is resigning his seat on the Board of Selectmen effective Nov. 7. His term would normally expire next March.

Mr. Hanscom has served 38 years on the board. First Selectman Steve Wight said a special town meeting would probably have to be called to elect someone to fill the remainder of Mr. Hanscom's term.

calculating class rank; they would not be used in calculating the student's overall average or in determining honor roll.

The points would only be earned for a course "that has the potential of carrying college credit." Such courses, or "advanced placement" courses, are nationally standardized offerings developed by Princeton University.

These courses are considered more difficult than traditional college placement courses.

Policy Committee member Betsy White, of Andover, and others, have argued that in the past students have chosen to drop out of AP courses and to take regular college placement courses—where they could earn a higher grade and enhance both their class rank and, with it, their chances for acceptance at more selective colleges.

"I think we ought to give the students credit for the hours and hours of extra work these courses require," Mrs. White said.

Director Stan Howe, of Bethel, has argued, however, that weighted grading discriminates against non-college-bound students.

The weighted grading plan has the support of the Telstar administration. In order for the proposed plan to become policy, the school board would have to vote favorably on it at two meetings.

year's Rebel stickers are sweeping down to the coastal plain determined to claim that championship for Telstar.

The Rebels began their playoff season with a 1-0 homefield victory over arch-rival Dirigo last Wednesday. The same two teams had played to a 1-1 tie only a few days earlier, but the formidable Rebel defense tightened up even further when it counted most—holding the Cougars to only one serious scoring threat, a one-on-one breakthrough shot Goalie Dawn Elliot was able to deflect off her shin guards.

A second-half goal by Shilo Hutchins, with an assist from Jen Gould, was all the offense the Rebels would need to move on to the semifinals.

Against Trail Academy on Saturday, the Rebels were facing a team that had narrowly edged them out for the number-two seed in the tournament, but the Rebels refused to allow the Rangers to cash in on their homefield advantage. The Rebel defense again proved impenetrable, giving up only five shots on goal—all futile.

Standout Kristi Clements provided the necessary offense, punching, scoring early in both halves, the second time with an assist from Shilo Hutchins.

A final unassisted tally from Jen Bailey sealed the victory, earning the Rebels their second championship shot in three years.

specific instances where water quality considerations call for controls beyond BPT, license limits will be lowered accordingly.

DEP expects that the first dioxin-limiting license will be issued within the first quarter of 1990. The length of time involved will allow the department to present a draft to the Board of Environmental Protection for posting to public hearing in January 1990. Comments will be incorporated into a final version by March.

Discharge licenses to control dioxin levels in other Maine rivers will be issued to the six remaining bleach kraft mills in the spring of 1990.

Dioxin is a generic term for a group of 75 related chemical compounds. The most common public use of the term, however, is in reference to 2,3,7,8 TCDD, a compound considered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to be a very potent carcinogen.

Former selectwomen returned to Upton board

At a special town meeting last week, former selectwomen Connie Gagnon and Pat Lewitt were re-elected to the Upton Board of Selectmen.

They will fill the unexpired terms of Laurie French and Christen Angevine, both of who have resigned from the board.

Mrs. Gagnon's remaining term will run until March 1990; Mrs. Lewitt's, until March 1991.

They will join Selectman Richard LeCompte on the board. Like Mmes. Gagnon and Lewitt, Mr. LeCompte had earlier served on the board but resigned during a period of turmoil and turnover in town affairs. He later agreed to return to the board and was elected at a special town meeting held in September.

Newry

By AMY HANSCOM

The Newry ladies who went bowling at the Oxford Lanes, in Rumford, were: Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Bea Lowell, Louise Tetley, Olive Anderson and June Swan; Rena Powers was a guest. Karlene was high on the triples and also high on the singles, with one string of over 100. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

"Apples are natural toothbrushes." They are good for teeth, the stomach, the smile and overall good health. King Solomon in his wisdom hailed the apple as a fruit of healing. "Have an apple"—an apple a day bugs the A.M.A.

Betsy Clark and Gil Seeley celebrated their respective birthdays with their friends at Betsy's residence Tuesday afternoon. Attending were: Thelma Lowery, Sylvia Wight, Bea Lowell, Louise Tetley, and Karlene Bachelder. They received many gifts and enjoyed ice cream and cake.

Sylvia Wight, Freda Robertson, and Gilbert Seeley attended the fellowship luncheon at the United Methodist Church on Wednesday. Jim Lowe spoke on Brazil.

Freda Robertson had as her guests for dinner on Sunday Allan and Heidi Korhonen, from Lakeland, Fla., and Dale and Darlene Korhonen, from Houston. Rodney Hanson's sermon at the Newry Community Church last Sunday was titled "Before it's too late." Verses were from the Book of Ecclesiastes 11:9-10 and 12:1-4, 12-14.

Ladies Circle of the Newry Community Church will meet Nov. 6 at Freda Robertson's home at 7:30 p.m. It will be a game night.

Owen and Sue Wight and Susan, Jennie and Chris Bowie visited Bill and Gail Brooke and family of North Whitefield last weekend.

On Nov. 26, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., children from Newry may go to Sunday River Skiway and pick up passes and skis. There will be a letter going out stating policies and this letter is to be signed and brought to Sunday River Skiway to obtain skis and passes on these days.

George and Claire Romans, of Hahn Air Force Base in Germany, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Bachelder. Also visiting is Claire's daughter, Michele O'Donnell, of Connecticut College, New London, Conn.

Newry youngsters enjoy annual Halloween party

Maine Street '90 has shown its pride again in the Town of Newry. The Newry Mothers Club sponsored yet another successful Halloween Party for the Children of Newry and guests. There were 32 children, 28 moms and dads, and seven Mothers Club members as helpers.

Mandy Berry, Jaime Grover, Anna Sysko, Kurt Wight, Darren Boker, Christian Morgan, Jody Littlefield, Bill Marshall, Chelsea Marshall, Andy Aloisio and Jay Aloisio all won prizes for best costumes. Dustin Sysko won the pumpkin by coming closest to its weight, and Mandy Berry won a jar of candy corn by coming closest to the number of pieces.

The children bobbed for apples, had a bag race, musical pumpkin, pin the nose on a pumpkin and had a haunted house to visit.

One of the highlights for the children was Steve Crone bringing his llama over for their annual visit. The children were told about the llama and given rides. The Mothers Club gives special thanks to all who helped plan, clean and gave prizes to make the day really special.

Course on Everglades offered by Adult Ed

"River of Grass," another exciting Natural History Course of the SAD #4 Adult and Community Education Program, will be offered at Telstar on Nov. 15. This course is a slide and lecture presentation about the Florida Everglades, by Christopher Lewey of Raven Interpretive Wildlife Programs, in Conway, N.H.

Mr. Lewey will discuss the usual and unusual wildlife of southern Florida and the Florida Keys. Also, the general ecology of the Everglades and its uniqueness will be looked at, along with some different habitats on a journey through some of the 1 1/2 million acres of sub-tropical wilderness.

Class will begin at 7 p.m. and end at 9 p.m. The registration fee is $4. For more information contact the Adult Education office, at 824-2780.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are reminded that the next monthly meeting will be Thursday, Nov. 2, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House. The Society will observe its annual "What's It?" and collectibles night. Anyone interested is cordially invited to attend.

The current issue of "Down East" contains an article on Henry Tufts, who, with a ghost writer, published in 1807 "A Narrative of the Life, Adventures, Travels and Sufferings of Henry Tufts, Now Residing at Lemington, in the District of Maine, in Substance as Compiled from his Own Mouth."

Tufts, born in New Market, N.H., in 1748, became a notorious thief, stealing horses, pigs, dogs, beehives, turkeys, sheep, flax, linen, household furniture and other men's wives and daughters. He lifted anything he might need, even clothes from other people's closets. He got a Sally Hall pregnant but was able to settle with her by paying $10. From then on he sought women in every town he visited but finally married an older woman, Lydia Blackford, Jail for theft in Portland, he tried to escape by burning down the jail, whereupon he was transferred to Old York Jail. From then on he would be in and out of prison for the next 30 years.

After suffering a particularly severe knife wound (believed to have been self-inflicted) he sought the well-known healing powers of Molly Ockett in a part of Maine then known as Sudbury Canada (today, Bethel). Molly Ockett saved his life and he spent one winter in Bethel studying her healing arts. Following his stay in what is today Bethel he married Sally Judd, of Claremont, N.H. He served in the Continental Army with many enlistments, using his light-fingered skills to good advantage there, pilfering whatever he or his friends needed.

Following his service, he became a preacher in central Maine and converting a large number of his commitment to God. Later he became a counterfeiter, followed by a period as pharmacist and medical practitioner in Fairfield, and Marblehead, Mass. Eventually he was caught stealing again and, with his long record of crime against him, sentenced to death. This sentence was later commuted to life in prison. He eventually escaped prison in Salem, Mass., and came to Limerick, where he gave up crime but not women. He died there in 1831, at the age of 83.

F.O.C.U.S. ART INSTRUCTOR Arla Patch gives 2nd-graders at Andover Elementary School a sneak preview of last week's art show. The show contained samples of students' work in printmaking, textures and symmetry. Principal Karen Robinson, an art major in college, said, "The children had this program four times a week for a month. Think what they could do if the funding were there so they could have instruction all year. Each student is so free with their expression and there is such joy in the work. I don't think there is an unhappy picture in the place."

"JUST BEYOND
ARTIST'S COVERED BRIDGE"

High Street
By VIVA WHITMAN

A lovely morning as I sit down to type. Thank the Lord it isn't raining as it did so much of the time last week. I am sorry to hear that they are getting so much rain in Calif. as they don't need it after all the trouble with the earthquake. As they say, "It never rains but it pours" and that seems to be what they are getting.

It sure looks different as I walk up the road for my exercise. The trees are getting very bare so one can look up into the woods or down into the woods depending on which side of the road one looks. But everywhere the leaves are falling or have fallen, making us realize more and more what comes next. Such a short time ago that the leaves were so beautiful but most of the color is gone now—all but rust and some gold. However, Peggy and I were noticing the trees Monday when we went to North Bridgton and found a very few trees that still were as beautiful as ever. When one sees them, they really stand out from the others.

Nothing much happened last Wednesday, but Thursday night Lawrence ended up going to the hospital and just came home yesterday. He has troubles and they just got the better of him for a little while, so he had to have help and rest. Friday was our day to go to town for groceries and errands as usual. Peggy didn't go with us as she was having trouble with her new heater that was put in a week ago last Friday. A very sensitive heater and it just wasn't working right, so she didn't want to leave it at the time. They came to look at it but didn't find much wrong, but it still acted up even after the fellow came to attend to it. However, she got by with it and they came yesterday and exchanged it for another one of the same type. Hopefully this one will perform as it should. One doesn't like getting a new heater, or anything else, only to find it doesn't work as it should. Everything costs so much today that one can't afford not to have appliances perform at tip top shape.

Peggy and Russell went to West Summer dancing on Saturday night. They knew some of their dancing friends were going there so decided to try it themselves. They said there was a nice crowd and they had a good time, which is what they go for. I didn't feel up to going so I stayed home with the TV and used my whirlpool to help the legs and back.

Russell has been working at extending the portico out front of the door step and has gotten that done. The snow and ice shouldn't bother or close to the steps now. He has also been trying to get the roof gone over with coating but has run out of it this time. Needs a little more to finish it up.

He has done one side of the room and part of the other side as well as the trailer out back that houses some of our stuff. Don't want any of them leaking and that happens too early at times.

A SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY was given Oct. 15 for Bill Young, who was 90 years young on Oct. 19. Family, relatives and friends came to help Bill celebrate: from Bethel, Rumford Pt., West Bethel, Albany, West Paris, Bryant Pond, Newry, Lovell, Rumford, Portland, Upton, Hanover, Andover, Augusta, Berlin, N.H., Medfield, Mass., and Chugach, Alaska. A good time was had by all.

Peggy, Russell and I went down to the hospital on Monday night to visit Lawrence. The fellow in the same room had had some kind of a bad time and Lawrence had had to leave the room for the team of doctors and nurses to work on him. He had been up to the family room about an hour when we got there. His roommate had been taken to intensive care for the help he needed. We visited a while and there was lots of activity there. It would be a shame if anything happened to shut down that hospital with all the good it does. One has to wait a long time sometimes but it would be worse if they had to travel to Lewiston and have just as long a wait and maybe longer. I know that I, for one, have appreciated having the hospital here when I needed attention and am sure others feel the same way.

I expect Peggy is getting her suitcase packed for a trip to State Grange this weekend. She and Bertie Benoit leave around noontime to go to Bangor to State Grange doing the next few days. They attend a banquet tonight and I know Saturday there is an all-day meeting. Other meetings occur but I don't know for what. I hope they have a good time and bring back lots of good news to the Grange. They are representing Franklin Grange #124 of Bryant Pond. I am sure there will be many there representing many other Granges, as is usual at State Grange. Mary was telling me that her mother still has Easter lilies in bloom as well as roses. While telling of that,

Russell still has roses in bloom and a purple cone plant that is blossoming. The mother plant is dead but the new one set out beside it this year is as green as can be and has a lovely blossom on it. Shows how queer things can be at times.

Archie, Mary and family went on a trip this past weekend. They toured the eastern parts of Maine, went into Lubec and Campobello Island. Mary said the flowers in the eastern parts of Maine are still in bloom. Visited points of interest as they went along. The girls are studying Maine History in school so it was interesting for them to see the sights.

Mary said she saw her first bald eagle in the wild but none thought to stop and get a picture at that time. Of course she has cussed herself since for not stopping, which is what any of us would do. It must have been quite a sight.

She told of seeing a young man in East Machias who had a baby goat in his arms and was taking a turn and hen turkey across the road home. She said it was quite a sight to see and it stopped the traffic while he got them across the road. What sights one can see at times. Don't forget the flea and food sale at West Paris Grange on Nov. 4. If you want a table to sell articles, call Mary at 674-2147 and she will help you. The price is right on them.

Thursday, Nov. 2, will be a Grange meeting at West Paris with Highway Safety as the topic for the program. Refreshments after the meeting so come and enjoy.

Professional dancer teaches movement to Crescent Park students

Thanks to a grant from the Maine Arts Commission as well as generous donations from SAD #44 businesses and community members, the Mahossee Arts Council was able to bring Paul Sarvis, a modern dancer and a member of the performing group Berg, Jones and Sarvis, to Bethel to spend seven days last month as an artist-in-residence at the Crescent Park School.

Mr. Sarvis has danced professionally with companies in New York, Washington, D.C., and with the Ram Island Dancers in Portland. He currently teaches dance at Bowdoin College as well as working as an artist-in-residence in the Maine schools.

During his residency in Bethel, Mr. Sarvis introduced the fifth grade students to movement and theater and helped them prepare original material to present in a final performance in the Bingham facility at Gould Academy.

On Thursday, Oct. 26, the students gave two performances for parent and kindergarten audiences. The students in Ms. Howe's class created and performed "Special Handshakes" and a variation of Shel Silverstein's poem "The Homework Machine." In "Handshakes" the students shared a variety of handshake situations from slow motion to speedy "high fives," including cartwheels, bumps and jumps—all synchronized to music.

The 8-graders in Miss Newcomb's room performed a variation of the story "Paddle to the Sea." The children used their bodies to form a Native American community and then molded themselves into the things one would come across canoeing from the mountains to the sea. Their canoe passed waterfalls, moose, beavers, a covered bridge, even chairlifts at a ski resort and a paper mill in operation.

When it was time for Mr. Sarvis' students to perform, Mr. Sarvis explained to the audience that the class had been working on language when they developed their vignettes. The students had randomly selected nouns and verbs and put them together into sentences. They used their bodies to create "The small cow rocketed outside." "Let's swing by Charlie's Place." "See the wild ghost hop fast" and "Let's blast Max." Mrs. Wheeler's group developed a play about a boy's miserable day, which was similar to the story: "Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day." The kindergartners in the audience watched in amazement as the older students formed themselves into all sorts of daily scenes and objects from a television to a broken copy machine and a backpack on the school bus.

At the conclusion of the performance, the 8-graders presented their new friend and choreographer with a Crescent Park T-shirt. Mr. Sarvis will return to Bethel Jan. 11 with Gretchen Berg and Gweneth Jones to do two assembly programs for Telstar Middle and High School students during the day, plus an evening performance at Gould Academy.

The Arts Council will be sponsoring several more programs in 1989. On Nov. 16, the Laurentian String Quartet will give two assembly performances for SAD #44 students. On Nov. 18, the Mandala Folk Dance Ensemble will return to Bethel to perform in the Telstar Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available at Prim's Pharmacy.

Children's songwriter and performer Rick Charette will be in Bethel for two

Notes from the Woodstock Historical Society

Following is a comment on Maine poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow: Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was the first American poet to employ the classic form and style of the Old World successfully to express the subjects and sentiments of the new. Although his narrative poems have long been part of our national heritage, only recently have critics rediscovered his gift for creating superb melodies and harmonies in his verse. The shorter lyrics, the sonnets, are among the finest American poems. — Horace Gregory

The Society's Nov. meeting will feature a discussion of plans for Woodstock's 15th anniversary celebration.

CPS Discoveries

By TAMMY MILLS

Mr. Hoy's 4th-graders have been tying science and social studies together by studying the interrelation between weather, climate, landforms, erosion and soil. They have also learned a variety of mapping and diagramming skills. This integration of subject areas helps students realize the relationships of all they have learned, and how they need to have knowledge in one area to learn about another. This fosters independent learning.

The 5th Grades have been working with an artist-in-residence, Paul Sarvis, learning theater and dance. They hope to culminate this cultural experience with a performance sometime next week.

Mary Newcomb, 5th Grade teacher, has been spending quality time reading the book "Follow My Leader" to her class. The book is the story of a guide dog for the sight-impaired. Guest speaker Pat Sarvis will be in her room to discuss life with a guide dog as a companion.

Relating literature with real-life experiences, such as this, serves two purposes: one is to help children realize that some of the best literature does indeed come from life experience, and another is to help books come alive.

Special thanks to Dr. Jud Smith, who gave a very enlightening presentation about children and violence. One cause of violence in children and adults is not being able to accept the constant change of the world around them. It is important that we as teachers emphasize the value of learning and thinking instead of filling minds with facts and skills. Many facts and skills are becoming outdated as soon as they are taught, so we must encourage children to reach beyond what they know and want to learn more. The more they are able to learn, the more change they will be able to handle.

He also emphasized parental involvement in a child's TV watching. A child sees countless acts of violence on TV and these need to be discussed and monitored by the parents. They should try to decide on non-violent solutions to the situations that could have been used instead. This gives the child a background of non-violent solutions to draw from if he/she is ever in a situation where violence is an issue.

Recycling starts at home

From the U. Maine Cooperative Extension Service
Setting up and maintaining your home recycling center can be a fast, easy process. The time required per household is about 73 minutes a month—a little more than two minutes per day.

The following are the basic steps for establishing your home recycling center:

- Find a convenient place in your home or apartment for the center. It doesn't take much room—storage of glass, cans and newspaper for a month usually takes a 3 x 3-foot area. The garage, a storage closet, corner of the kitchen or under the sink are good places.

- Find sturdy containers to store materials. Three plastic buckets or paper boxes can be used: one for paper, one for cans and one for glass.

- Locate your closest recycler.
- Find out if the recycling center is a donation or buy back center; what materials the center will take; how you should prepare the recyclables before you bring them in (e.g., some recyclers require that cans be crushed before you bring them in).

Basics of household separation:

- Plastic: PET and HDPE are readily recyclable. This includes bottles for milk, detergent, cooking oil, motor oil, shampoo, soda and juice beverages. Rinsed, with caps and neck rings removed, these can be stored in a bag, box, or bucket. Occasionally, labels and bottom caps must be removed.

- Used Motor Oil: Must be stored in a sealed container and returned to a collection site. These sites are listed in the Maine Oil Recycling Program (MORP) Directory distributed by DEP. No additives to the oil are allowed, i.e., anti-freeze, solvents, gasoline, water.

- Scrap Metal: Auto parts, window and door frames, cast iron, brass and copper tubing, lawn furniture, if accepted, must be brought to recycling center.

- Organic Wastes: Food wastes and yard wastes can be composted in an individual's back yard. The end product of composting can be used to fertilize trees, shrubs and flowers.

- Municipal composting programs may collect leaves and yard wastes for larger scale composting. This frequently requires individuals to collect leaves and yard waste at the curbside. Some programs may require that the material be bagged. Contact the Extension Office (743-8329) for a fact sheet on composting.

- Paper: Includes corrugated cardboard, newspaper, computer paper, stationery, ledger, coated stock, and sometimes can include magazines. Paper must be bundled with twine or placed in a paper bag, stacked neatly and must be kept dry. Frequently, paper must be segregated by type. Some paper items, such as coated paper and magazines, may not be acceptable to the commercial recycler.

- Glass: Glass jars and bottles should be cleaned, with caps and lids removed. Broken pieces are OK, but window glass, drinking glasses, lightbulbs, or heat resistant glass is not acceptable. Ideally, glass should be stored in a strong, seal-container such as a barrel or trash can. It can also be boxed or bagged. Glass must be separated by color: clear (flint), brown (amber), and green. Colors other than these are not commonly acceptable.

Ski camp scheduled for junior ski racers

Gould Academy and Sunday River Skiway will host the 9th Annual Gould/Sunday River Race Camp, Nov. 18-21.

The camp provides serious junior racers with the opportunity to train on snow early in the season under the direction of state and eastern level coaches. Sunday River Skiway has top-to-bottom snowmaking capabilities that have earned it a reputation for high-quality early season snow, and is an official training site for the U.S. Alpine Ski Team.

The nationally and regionally recognized coaching staff will re-orient racers to snow through a progression of free-riding, technical drills, gate drills, and regular gate training. Emphasis will be on both the technical and tactical aspects of slalom and giant slalom. Videotaping and analysis will also be used extensively.

Evening programs will consist of lectures and discussions on mental preparation and rehearsal, demonstrations and video analysis of the racer's technique as well as that of World Cup skiers. Former U.S. Ski Team coach Bob Harkins will present a lecture on Goal Setting for Excellence in Athletics.

Tutoring will be available to these students seeking individual academic help. Various faculty members from Gould Academy will provide this service at a small extra charge.

The camp will begin with free skiing and drills and conclude with a full length slalom training on the final day. The camp will officially end at about 1 p.m. on Tuesday. The racers will be able to free-ski on their own for the remainder of the day.

Sunday River Inn will serve as the ski camp headquarters and will provide three meals a day. The meals will start with dinner Friday and go through lunch Tuesday.

Tuition is $300 for room, meals, lifts, and coaching, with reduced tuition for skiers who already have tickets, those who can only attend on Saturday and Sunday, or those who do not wish to have meals.

The application is due by Nov. 7, along with a $50 non-refundable deposit. Enrollment is limited to racers 13-18 years old. Address inquiries to: Mr. Vel Gardner, Gould Academy, P.O. Box 860, Bethel, ME 04217. An acknowledgement will be mailed upon receipt of your application materials.

WANT TO QUIT SMOKING?

Do you smoke because of tension and stress? Have you quit before, only to start smoking again when pressure mounted? Was quitting on your own too much of a burden?

The Stephens Memorial Hospital "Freedom From Smoking" group program may be what you need.

Quitting smoking involves more than simply eliminating a bad habit. It's a major change in lifestyle that affects a person's self-image and the ways daily stresses are handled. Sometimes you can't eliminate smoking permanently unless you replace it with other coping strategies.

When you're with others in the same boat, quitting smoking can be easier. Developed and tested extensively, the lung association's new Freedom From Smoking clinic program runs for seven sessions. Smokers can use all the help and support they can get when they quit. And that's what the Freedom From Smoking clinic tries to supply.

To find out more about the group program, which starts Nov. 14, call the Health Education Department of Stephens Memorial Hospital, at 743-9363, Ext. 471. Sessions will be held at the hospital library.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

At the Rotary Club's Tuesday morning breakfast meeting at the Bethel Inn, the speaker was Gerard Denison, of the State Planning Office, the guest of Rodney Lynch.

Mr. Denison spoke on the changing picture of the labor force in Maine, pointing out that population growth is slowing, while the population is aging. This will mean slower growth of the labor force. And this will mean employer's will not have many applicants to choose from when it comes to filling jobs.

He suggested local businesses become involved in grassroots training programs, particularly with an eye to bringing more women and senior citizens into the labor force.

Prior to the program, the club welcomed its newest member, George Larson, executive director of the Bethel Area Health Center.

Visiting Rotarians at the meeting were Larry Wilkey, of Oxford Hills, Stan Cole, of Kennebunk, and Ted Chadbourne, of Saco.

The winner of the 50/50 raffle was John MacMunn.

Dave Freble announced the start of the club's annual citrus sale, with delivery in time for Christmas. Proceeds will go towards the Spanish-American Youth Exchange.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BRODENT

Dear Thomas J.,
What? ... me forget the 24th anniversary of your 21st birthday? ... how can you even think such a thought? Just because I sent you neither a card, nor a gift? ... never called to sing, nor sent good wishes via the grapevine? That's no proof of my disloyalty, little brother, only of my advanced absentmindedness. Besides, acknowledging that your birth and the nearly coincidental death of World War II were historical decades ago gives me cause for pause: it reinforces my sense that life is ephemeral, at best, and that's scary.

Why, it seems that only a blink or two ago, I was learning to read from grim headlines, several inches tall, or from tall tales of the brothers Grimm. And now, moments later, I'm mistaken for a Golden Girl! (Ask Maddy to explain it; I'm still smarting.)

In spite of my "approaching senility," Aunt Gerrie calls it, I am managing to keep up with the flurry of Fall in our rural range. Up here, Fall means "getting ready" to most of us. We're getting ready for winter, for fairs, for hunting. (I hear the report of rifles even as I write.) We gather wood for warmth, wool for mittens, pumpkins for pies. Some of us stalk birds and then deer; others stock shelves with preserves. Many are busy knitting, sewing, baking and crafting items for the upcoming West Bethel Union Church Fair (Nov. 4), and the gardeners are tilling and toiling (while the sun shines) to put their beds to bed.

This past week, several of us joined area churchwomen for a delightful fall luncheon provided by the women of the Bethel Methodist Church. Jane Hosterman, recently returned from a mini-reunion with several Simmons College sisters on Cape Cod, joined Clara Relfe, Iva Abramson, Becky Kendall, Marilyn and Ruth Gilbert, and me on the trip to town. We enjoyed a steaming stew served up in real pumpkin pots, and the chance to chat with diners from the Union Churches of Andover and Locke Mills, the Newry Community Church, the Deering United Methodist Church of South Paris, and the West Parish Congregational Church of Bethel, as well as the Methodist hostesses. The lunch was preceded by a lively slide presentation of his recent Brazil experience, offered with wit and charm by Jim Lowe, manager of Mothers' Restaurant.

A few days later, others of us enjoyed an impromptu picnic lunch on a National Forest wood-gathering site, on a balmy Indian Summer day. As in days of old, the womenfolk (Iva Grover and C.J.) packed the lunch and trucked it into the forest where the menfolk (Rupert Grover and Donald-your-brother-in-law) were gathering firewood. We spread our feast on a flat rock and enjoyed the sun, the mountains, the warmth, and the company we keep. It's a far cry from hastily gobbled lunches in crowded cafeterias along the "Technology Highway," wouldn't you say?

Speaking of far cries, we recently attended a most unique wedding that blended rituals of French-Canadian, New Order American, and Passamaquoddy Indian cultures in the formal union of Barbara Bassett and Francis Dumont. Warren and Jane Corliss, Caroline and Charlie Merrill, Laurie Riley (her friend Dale Bellman served as a top-hatted usher), and the Vautours represented West Bethel at a gathering that combined tradition, pageantry, pomp and rites-of-passage in a most unusual celebration.

There were satin gowns, top hats and tails, stretch limos, and tom toms. The bride's mother, Joyce, was matron of honor; ring bearers were Adam and Simon Dumont (sons of the principal players) decked out in miniature monkey suits. Following a fine feast at Bumps Lodge (Sunday River) and an hour or so of '80s music and motion, the bride's uncle, a Passamaquoddy chief, donned his feathered headdress, hoisted his tom tom and beat out the rhythm, while the bride hitched up her satin skirt and led her Native-American relatives and friends around the floor in several traditional dances. It was a very moving experience, to see them performing the ancient steps, to watch the very young enter the circle and imitate the adults, to realize that a proud culture is struggling for survival in a world that often ignores its presence and forgets its contribution. We were pleased and proud to be observers of the special group as they marched to their "different drummer."

Meanwhile, back to the foothills, it's business as usual, Tom. I had to stop for Mr. and Mrs. Moose the other day, as they crossed the Flat Road within minutes of each other (Ted and Gertrude Grover will bear witness). Fortunately, I was driving... I don't know how I'd react if they crossed my path during my morning workout... definitely yield the right of way, for sure! And Iva and I spooked another bull moose as we walked the Mason road last week. He retreated into his woods before we could get close enough to define the points on his rack. These past weeks have also been given over to bird hunting. David Hanscom and his dad (a.k.a. David Hanscom) are piling them into their pouches at a rapid rate. Maybe we'll be invited over for Grouse-Under-Glass soon.

This morning, as I sit typing, I hear an occasional gunshot. Am I concerned? Not in the least. It's the special, pre-season opening-day-for-residents-only, prior to the official opening day next week. Donald has gone off in his flame orange outfit, totting his rifle and his lunch, to follow his friends into the woods in pursuit of a buck. I ponder the probability of his success with mixed emotions. It would be a peak experience for him, to be sure, but I'd prefer not to have to deal with the net result until I've finished the mittens and the hats and the other semi-completed projects for the fair next week. Maybe, if I'm lucky, he won't be... at least not today....

It's getting close to my deadline, as usual, dear brother-and-former-newsman... you remember the feeling, I'm sure. I'm off to deliver my column and then on to the store to procure a bit of orange protection for my future walks. I'll buy a vest, at best, to cover my sweats. It's probably in my best interest for the next month, not to meander down the road unless my form is flawless. Give my greetings to Michelle, Laura, Stephen and John. Ask John to salute the Kelleys for me. And speaking of saluting, I'm still waiting for a second-hand baton from Det. Slamin. I've turned down several offers from the neighbors, stating my assurance that the real McCoy would arrive soon in the mail.

Hope you had a happy 45th. Come back to the mountains when you need serenity.
Love,
C.B.

What a beautiful week. The days have been just perfect to go out and finish all of those button-up-for-winter jobs which seem to come upon us all too soon. Ernest and Alberta Angvine, Avery Angvine and Jimmy Knights all went up country Oct. 12 to go bird hunting at Ashland, to the northern Maine woods. "Dick" and "Ricky" Angvine and Terry Campbell joined the others Oct. 14 so that "Ricky" could hunt for a moose with his permit. He did get his moose (I put that in last week) the first afternoon, which woods-dressed at 650 lbs. and had a lovely set of horns. "Dick," "Ricky" and Terry came back Oct. 17. The bird-hunters did bag some birds. They also saw a lot of moose, and a few deer, rabbits and porcupine.

Mackie Chapman was also one of the lucky bull moose hunters. Mackie's husband, Howard; father, Philip Cummings; and uncle, Larry Cummings went with her. The moose weighed 750 lbs. woods-dressed and they took videos so that Frank and Ida Chapman and other interested parties could view them.

Bruce Smith, son of Homer and "Edie" Smith, got hurt on his job at Bancroft Oct. 20 and was hospitalized three days. Dennis Smith, son of Homer and "Edie" Smith, got hurt at his home Oct. 21 and had to be taken to the emergency room at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway. Both boys got hand injuries.

Amanda Gilbert, of Bridge Street, visited Jessica Coolidge Oct. 21 for the day.

Dr. Leonard Shaw, Becky, Jon and Jen went to a combination birthday party for Heather and Heath Keniston, Oct. 21, in Norway at their parents, David and Jody Keniston. Also attending were their grandparents, Bob and Ginny Keniston, of Bethel, and grandmother, Elaine Packard Weston, of Norway.

Oct. 20, Stan and Althea Brown went to Waterville to the wedding of their grandson, Andrew Benson, and Alicia Rodrigues.

Andrew's other grandmother, Sylvia Benson, also lived on our road until her death in July. Not very long before her passing she told me that Andrew had come in to inform her of his approaching wedding and that she was going to get started on a quilt for a wedding present. She had, and Andrew's aunt, Sharon Benson Kimball, finished the quilt so that it was on the gift table.

Grace Taylor Douglass' mother, Alice Taylor, passed away on Oct. 18. Memorial services were Sunday, Oct. 22, at the Congo Church in Bristol. Attending from our road, besides Dick and Grace, were Brian and Gina Douglass, Brent Douglass and Shelly Rice (Shelly is from Bethel), and Beth Douglass and Chuck Luskey (Chuck is from Lovell). Alice Taylor and family lived on our road from the 1930s until after the death of her husband. She ran the house to Jimmy Benson and family around 1945. If one cut across the field, Alice was probably the nearest neighbor to Frank and Thirza Gibson, who lived at that time in the house we live in now. Frank Jr. can remember the family living there.

Oct. 23 I picked up Barbara Levene Murey. We then went and picked up Louise Loring and all went to Northland's, in Berlin, N.H., in honor of Louise's birthday.

Thursday, Barbara Murey came to visit and while here Louise Loring and Elaine Packard Weston dropped in. Frank came home a little early that day as he was leaving at 5:00 for a hunting trip to Benedita. George Gibson has come up to stay with "Frankie" and I.

Just got a call from our son, James, saying that they were heading for the airport to fly to Orlando, Fla., to go to Disneyland or World (get the Florida and California one mixed up). This should be a great trip for our granddaughter, Heather, who is seven years old.

Friday, "Frankie" had to take his van to South Paris for an appointment. When we got there we asked if they could take us to the Country Way, which they did, and picked us up later. We were just coming out when my sister, Iva Holden, and friend, Mary Nurmi, were driving in. Now that the leaves are gone from the river maples we once again can see the sun making sparkling like diamonds across the river as the sun rises.

Friday afternoon I stopped in to see Joyce Stearns and had a nice visit.

You wished no one a last farewell
You didn't say good-bye
You were gone before we knew it, dad
And only God knows why
A golden heart stopped beating
And you were then at rest
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best
We think of you in silence, dad
And make no outward show
For what it meant to lose you, dad
No one will ever know.

Fryeburg Fair sets record

The Fryeburg Fair ended a week of mixed weather conditions to become the best-attended fair in the event's 139-year history.

Fair officials estimated that approximately 300,000 people attended the eight-day, Sunday to Sunday, fair, which opened Oct. 1 under sunny skies. The weather produced rain on Monday, fog on Tuesday, snow squalls on Wednesday, high winds on Thursday and steady drizzle on Friday.

"But we really got the good weather when we needed it," said a weary Barry Emery, head of the ticket department for the state's largest agricultural fair for the past 14 years. Both Saturday and the final Sunday proved to be all-time record attendance days and helped push the eight-day total nearly 12,000 over the record set two years ago.

"We had a little more than twice the attendance at the gate this year as we did 10 years ago," said Philip Andrews, a trustee and member of the fair's governing three-member Finance Committee for nearly four decades.

Emery said his tabulations showed that the final daily paid attendance was 149,234, exceeding the 1986 record by 11,636.

"I just couldn't believe the way the people kept coming," said Mr. Emery as he talked about the state's largest single-day attendance record set on Saturday. A total of 39,929 people bought tickets on Saturday, which is always the fair's biggest day. The previous record for a Saturday was set in 1987 at 38,144 with 1988's 36,848 close behind.

Previous year's single-day paid attendance includes: 1978, 127,063; 1979, 127,063; 1980, 127,063; 1981, 127,063; 1982, 127,063; 1983, 127,063; 1984, 127,063; 1985, 127,063; 1986, 127,063; 1987, 127,063; 1988, 127,063; 1989, 127,063.

The paid attendance figures do not include weekly tickets, camper tickets, lifetime memberships, senior citizens on Tuesdays, exhibitors, concessionaires or children 12 and under. Fair officials have traditionally doubled the daily paid attendance to estimate the total number of people attending.

Traffic on Saturday backed up for miles in both directions coming into the grounds on Rte. 5, about a mile from Rte. 302. Despite the addition of 15 acres of parking this year, fair officials had advised people to park along the road and walk in. Traffic was tied up for hours Saturday afternoon and evening.

One of the fair's goals over the past decade has been to establish an all-weather fair that could prosper in the worst of weather. That has been aided by the week's built-in crowd of campers, a city of fairgoers located alongside and across Rte. 5 from the 176-acre fair.

In all, the fair broke three attendance records this year: on Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

"I don't know how many people have told me that they thought it was an extraordinary fair," Mr. Andrews said as he, David Hastings II and Eugene Hussey, of North Conway, N.H., met to begin working on next year's event. The finance committee members met with superintendents and department heads to discuss ways to improve the fair for another year.

Exact earnings as well as tentative plans for next year will be announced at the annual December trustees meeting. A new president will be elected to succeed Earl Osgood, who has served in that post for more than a quarter century.

In the sprawling livestock area, superintendent Henry Black reported a busy week of activities that saw a total of 3,594 animals on the grounds, including 445 beef animals, 331 dairy animals, 69 hogs, 173 goats, 287 poultry and 218 rabbits. With 491 oxen stalled during the week, Fryeburg boasts the largest steer and oxen show in the world, Mr. Andrews said.

Seth Buchanan, who has been tending the camping on the grounds for the past 15 years, said more than 3,000 campers and RVs were at the fair by Friday night.

X-C ski center and area ski shop helping equip needy with skiing gear

Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center of Bethel and the Jack Frost Ski Shops in the Bethel area are accepting donations of used ski gear and clothing for nonprofit groups in the community. The two facilities are taking part in Subaru Deduct-A-Ski 1989, a nationwide program that distributes ski equipment and clothing to local charities for use in skiing programs. Sunday River and Jack Frost will provide tax deduction receipts for all equipment, and donate usable gear to the Bethel Rotary Club and Bethel Outing Club.

"Subaru Deduct-A-Ski is a great way for consumers to clean their closets of unused ski equipment," said Steve Wright of Sunday River Cross Country Ski Center. "They get a tax deduction, and a great feeling of helping others. Disadvantaged and handicapped athletes get a chance to learn to ski and race. Everybody truly benefits from a program like this."

making it the largest single camping gathering anywhere in the state.

The parimutuel department broke 1987's record betting handle of $343,589 by more than $73,000. Racing director Paul Lusky said the total amount bet for the six-day racing card was $316,890, compared to $246,917 in 1986, $343,589 in 1987 and $307,473 in 1988. The addition of computerized exacta and trifecta racing boosted the numbers beginning in 1986.

Lusky expects to break the $1 million barrier when Fryeburg expands its card from 10 to 12 races per day in the near future. A single-day state fair betting record of $221,857 was set on Saturday.

Kenneth Couch, Jr., of Buckfield won the Crisco national pie contest for the annual Boys and Girls State banquet was held. Following the ham dinner, we had the opportunity of hearing a report from Wendy Faulkingham, who was a delegate to Girls State. She also shared a picture she had of the entire group of 500 girls and 45-50 staff members who attended this program at Husson College last June.

Wendy, from Woodstock, now a senior at Telstar Regional High School, spoke of how much she learned about government and how much she enjoyed the opportunity to participate with so many others in this week, which was so busy and passed so quickly that most of the girls wished that it was not ending so soon. Her father remarked that she went away a typical teen and by the graduation, which he attended, she had become a young woman who had learned so much about what it is to be a citizen and had become so much more mature. Another father, whose daughter had previously been a delegate, agreed and remarked about the lasting friendships made there.

Tanya Cyr, then of Greenwood, was the other girl sponsored by our unit. She has since moved away from this area, but will be sending us a written report.

Girls State was organized in 1937 at the National Convention of the American Legion Auxiliary and is a program in citizenship training in which the participants learn by doing. When they arrive at the college campus they are divided into various towns. From this they organize and govern their own towns, go on to organize political parties, hold caucuses, nominate candidates, develop platforms, campaign and elect officers on the state level.

While this program is run and sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, it is possible for other organizations to assist in financing the participation of still more delegates so that more girls could attend.

Guests connected with the Girls State program who were able to attend were: Shirley Williams, of Dryden, director of Girls State; Ruth Jucious of Turner, assistant director; Annie Beck of West Paris, who was a counselor. Each spoke of their experiences and devotion to this program while also relating some anecdotes about lighter moments. They spoke of visits by our congressional delegates and that of Governor McKernan. One of the most interesting speakers was Dr. Bill Manning, of Minnesota, an authority on substance abuse. He draws the girls into discussions about things important to them. This year one of these topics was teen suicide, and Mrs. Williams expressed great concern for the number of delegates who said that they had considered suicide and several who said "I" they had tried. Mrs. Jucious ended her remarks by telling Wendy, "Now you know what's expected of you as a citizen. You may be our first woman governor."

Others at the head table were Past Department President Fannie Cummings, Past Department Commander John E. Howe and Alanson Cummings, charter members of the post. Each offered a few remarks. In keeping with the subject of young people, Mr. Cummings told of being in a nearby McDonald's Restaurant recently when a school bus full of young people drove up and the passengers all came in. He was so impressed by how happy and exuberant they were, having just won a field hockey game, and how well-behaved they were at the same time. They showed caring for one another by pooling their money so that all could buy something. He found them to be such delightful young people. It turned out that they were from Leavitt, in Turner, which delighted Mrs. Jucious, who said that two of those students were her granddaughters.

A very brief meeting was held following the supper for the purpose of voting upon the membership application of Eleanor Andrews, which was accepted unanimously.

A regular meeting will be held Nov. 2.

JACKSON-SILVER AUXILIARY

An official of the Jackson-Silver Auxiliary, in Locke Mills, sent in the following report.

In a room gaily decorated with the orange and black of Halloween, the annual Boys and Girls State banquet was held. Following the ham dinner, we had the opportunity of hearing a report from Wendy Faulkingham, who was a delegate to Girls State. Effect of Smoking on Medicines

In spite of continuing efforts to get people to stop smoking, a large part of the population smokes regularly. While the detrimental effects of cigarette smoke on the body have been examined in numerous reports, the potential effect of smoking on the medicines we take is not as well known.

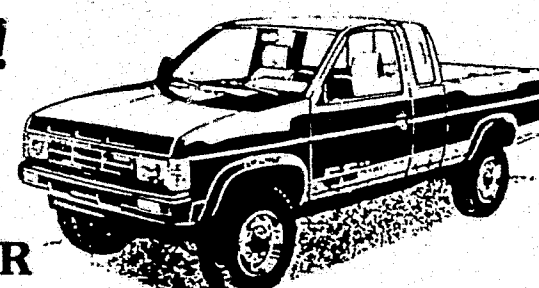

According to Dr. William Bond, at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science, smoking accelerates the metabolism of many drugs, possibly reducing their effectiveness. In a recent issue of American Druggist, Dr. Bond lists several drugs that are affected by cigarette smoke.

Estrogens and Oral Contraceptives: It is unclear why, but cigarette smoke enhances the tendency of estrogens to promote the clotting of blood.

Insulin: Smoking may change the way glucose responds to insulin, increasing insulin requirements in many smokers.

Theophylline: Smoking has been shown to increase the metabolism and elimination of theophylline, a medicine used by asthmatics. Smokers may require as much as 50 percent higher doses of theophylline as compared to nonsmokers.

Gould assembly starts day with a bang, or a fire

When the entire Gould Academy student body and faculty gather for the daily morning assembly at 7:45 a.m., no one quite knows what to expect these days. When Headmaster Bill Clough introduced the concept of arriving at Gould six years ago, the idea was for the school to begin the day together, inspired, enthused, or stimulated by a presentation by a teacher or student.

This fall's assemblies have perhaps exceeded Mr. Clough's expectations, even surpassing his own periodic shearing of a live sheep on stage in front of 200 fairly impressed people.

The science department has taken the lead in this respect, led by chemistry teacher Ted Lawrence. Ted challenged students to ponder several factors relating to combustion, using matches to demonstrate. Apparently he felt that he needed more props to make the point, and asked for the house lights to be doused, at which point he gave a live demonstration of "fire-eating," actually placing flames in his mouth.

Physics teacher Tom Ford chose to use a live student for his demonstration on some of the dynamics of pressure. Junior Jeff McCarthy, of Dixfield, was chosen, and the apparatus used was a conventional bed of nails—nearly 1000 of them—which easily punctured a potato when Ford dropped it from the height of one foot.

McCarthy removed his shirt and laid down slowly on the bed of nails, after placing a plastic shield over his face. The shield was a necessary precaution, for Ford proceeded to layer three cinder blocks and four bricks on McCarthy's stomach and chest, and then split the top most block with a maul.

"I actually didn't know whether it would work," Mr. Ford said modestly. "My wife Wendy begged me not to do this, right up until this morning," he said, "but a sound knowledge of the principles involved ensured a safe outcome."

Student assistant McCarthy stood up, looking somewhat relieved and with a lot of little indentations in the skin on his back, but no puncture wounds. The hardest part of the show for McCarthy was pounding the thousand nails through the board. "I had to pound nails until midnight, and then get up at 6 a.m. and hammer for an hour-and-a-half," he said. His right arm was quite weak afterwards.

So far, no other Gould faculty members have outdone Ford and Lawrence, at least in terms of showmanship. But given the start to this year's assembly season, it's only a matter of time.

Gould Players present two French comedies

French comedy and music will be themes of the Gould Players' performance in Bingham Auditorium at Gould Academy on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 3 and 4. The public is invited to attend; admission is free.

Two short plays, in English, will be presented: "The Medicine Show—or How to Succeed in Medicine Without Really Trying," by Virginia Glasgow Koste, and "An Episode in the Life of an Author," by Jean Anouilh. The evening's program will include three French musical selections by the Gould choir.

"The Medicine Show" is freely derived from Moliere's zesty Renaissance comedy, "The Doctor in Spite of Himself." Performers are Oren Murphy, Marlies Ovinga, Garrett Sullivan, Darcy Winn, Nicole Brown, Jeff McCarthy, Andrea Pillsbury, David Torruella and Scott Willingham.

In "The Medicine Show," a shiftless woodcutter, Sganarelle, quacks with his wife, who then puts him in the compromising position of being advertised as a doctor. There is no way out, and Sganarelle must play the part, relying on intuitive wit, and much clowning around. His part is played by senior Oren Murphy, of Waldoboro; his wife is played by senior Marlies Ovinga, of Bethel.

"An Episode in the Life of an Author" is a French farce written in 1946. It depicts an author who would like to get a quiet day's work done, but who is interrupted by a steady stream of friends, visitors, strangers and workmen. As he attempts to maintain a calm control over the situation, the chaos increases until his day and his home literally come tumbling down in a cascade of water from the broken plumbing above.

Needless to say, this has been a technical challenge for cast and crew, and directors Carol Fiske and Ted Lawrence, along with technical director Vicki Rackliffe, will be waiting with mops and towels to return order to the hall. Junior Dan Bornstein, of Bedford Hills, N.Y., plays the author; his wife is played by Christine Tomah, of Princeton.

Other players in the two plays are Garrett Sullivan, of New London, N.H.; Darcy Winn of Fraser, Colo.; Nicole Brown of East Lyme, Conn.; Jeff McCarthy of Dixfield; Andrea Pillsbury of Mexico; David Torruella of Santurce, Puerto Rico; Scott Willingham of Framingham, Mass.; Alicia Norling of Skowhegan; Jill Nowak of Newcastle; Matt Alexander of Aurora, Ill.; Amy Fall of Westport; Chris Drake of Cape Elizabeth; Kate Chester of Bar Harbor; and Sewall Lee of Gaithersburg, Md. Show time is 8 p.m.

Coaching course offered

Effective Coaching Skills will be the topic of a course sponsored by SAD #44 Adult and Community Education and taught by Richard Taylor of Gould Academy.

The course will run on Monday and Wednesday evenings starting Oct. 30 and ending Nov. 15, 7-9 p.m., at Telstar High School. The 12-hour series will feature topics such as the philosophy of coaching, teens and pre-teens, sports psychology, injury prevention, and appropriate training techniques for improved performance and safety.

The course would be appropriate for coaches of school and recreation department teams, as well as parents. Coach Taylor is a former Olympic cross-country skier who has coached at all levels, including the U.S. Olympic Ski Team. He is presently coach of cross-country skiing at Gould Academy.

To enroll in the course, call the Adult and Community Education office, 824-2780. The fee for the course is $10 for residents of SAD #44 and $15 for non-residents.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary met Tuesday evening with five members present. They planned the Christmas Craft Fair, which will be at the Fire Station, Dec. 2, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Denise Swan was appointed to take care of the advertising.

The price for the tables will be the same as last year. If you want a table, please call one of the following: Cheryl Young (Glen), Flossie Barner (Andre), Denise Swan (Hugh), Mary Stone, or Lorraine Mills.

Sally Melville and Jay were in Bangor last week. Jay was operated on at one of the local hospitals. We wish you a speedy recovery, Jay.

On Friday, Oct. 20, Dolly (Hebert) Olson was the star attraction at the Locke Mills Town Hall where friends and family members surprised her with a 40th birthday party. Friends took her out for supper first at the Red Top II and then, after leaving the restaurant, blindfolded her and took her for a ride, bringing her, still blindfolded, into the town hall where the family was waiting for her in the dining area. Before she could remove the blindfold, everyone shouted "Happy Birthday Dolly!" Fun was had by all. Dolly received much love and many gifts. We love you Dolly!

Department will not, repeat, not be cleaning chimneys this year.

They supposedly are designed to make things safer, or better for one's own good, which always means someone has taken away another little slice of our freedom to do something. It reminds me of God giving the people the Ten Commandments and then having to write hundreds of laws to define, refine and otherwise explain something that should have been so simple. We are not happy unless something is complicated, I guess. Denise wanted me to say she sent up the notice about the chimney cleaning and there must have been some miscommunication somewhere. However, she need not have worried about it. It wouldn't be the first time things have been put in my column that I didn't write but got hassled for—that's a hazard correspondents face. It comes with the territory. All in all, considering all the items, reports, and everything that goes into printing a newspaper, they do a pretty fantastic job. I commend them.

The Greenwood Fire Department will be meeting Nov. 7, at 7 p.m., for the November monthly meeting at the Fire Station.

FINALLY—Pat Martin, of Rumford, manned the bucket as the State Cable truck finally started stringing cable in Andover. Mr. Martin said the company hopes to start service to Andover by Jan. 1.

Clothing exchange in Andover may be first venture of its kind

As home businesses go, Gloria Conary of North Main Street, in Andover, has a most unusual one. She operates the Tots to Teens Clothing Exchange, where young mothers can bring in bags of outgrown children's clothing.

"Pick out the saleable items and give them credit which can be used at any time toward another purchase," she explained. "Clothing of all sizes can also be purchased without an exchange. I have customers from all the surrounding towns, as well as from New Hampshire."

Her husband Neil (who is also Andover's code enforcement officer) said, "We were thinking of part-time businesses, and there seemed to be a need for this sort of thing. It was Gloria's idea and we expanded on it. She also sells highchairs and cribs, but they are sold the minute they come in. We plan to someday get more baby furniture in here. Summer is the busiest time, especially before school starts. It is the only business of its type that we know of."

The Conarys are originally from Blue Hill. Neil is presently looking forward to a home business of his own. As of Nov. 3 he is retiring from MCI (although an employee of A.T.&T.) after nearly 28 years as an electronic technician, and is being fêted at a retirement party by the people at the station. He transferred here from Colorado in 1962. After retirement, and a week's vacation with Gloria, he plans to get into small business accounting with four or five clients.

"Eighteen percent of the workforce now work out of their homes," he explained. "I am a computer freak. When I first started with computers I might have known a tweak more than the guy next to me or vice versa. Now, with digital equipment, you just stick a card in the computer, and everyone is nearer the same level of expertise. It took a lot of the fun out of it. Once I thought of it as a tool, though, I really got caught up in it and took it on as a challenge."

He is not the only one in the family with an affinity for computers. Five-year-old Brent has felt perfectly at home using one for games since the age of two, without any trepidation whatsoever; and 10-year-old Scott does his homework for the Andover Elementary School using Word Perfect software on the Apple IIe his father bought for the boys.

Besides running the shop and taking care of Scott and Brent, Gloria also provides day care for four-year-old Robbie Merrill and year-old Desiree Hodgdon during the day. Her limited time for the computer is devoted to an interest in graphics and spreadsheets.

The Conarys live in a 32-room home, which also has two occupied apartments. They may add a third later. The house was originally a private hospital, and the owner wished to turn it into a tuberculosis sanitarium, but the town did not approve. In the '30 and '40s it turned into a hotel, first known as Snow Valley Inn, and later, Glen Ellis. Some of the upstairs interior doors still have the numbers on them, and at one time a network of wires for room service went into the kitchen.

Tots to Teens is open Tuesday to Friday, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Wednesday evening until 8 p.m., or other times by appointment.

Attendees at recent students-at-risk workshop want more such programs

Opinions, suggestions, and ratings were included in 141 evaluation forms returned by persons attending the recent SAD #44 Students at Risk workshop. Just under 300 people were involved in the workshops as presenters, panelists, exhibitors, conferees, or workshop committee.

SAD #44 staff development committee, headed by Telstar Assistant Principal Carroll Higgins, met last week to review reports and recommendations from the workshop committee. Conducting the annual fall district-wide workshop is a responsibility of the staff development committee.

In building the conference program, the committee defined the student-at-risk as being any and every student who, for one reason or another, either long-standing or unexpected, is placed in jeopardy of not graduating from Grade 12.

The content of the conference, its two keynote, and 41 one-hour sessions menu, was intended to raise the awareness level of each person on the SAD #44 staff: awareness of how numerous the "risks" are; awareness of some of the resources within our schools, community, and state that are accessible to each one, both for helping to identify risk situations, and in addressing solutions. Some workshops offered strategies in behavior management or instructional strategies.

Feedback on the evaluation forms often urged "follow-through" or requested more opportunity to attend meetings or workshops that participants were unable to attend at the conference because of needing to make only three choices of the 41 opportunities.

The workshop committee, co-chaired by Mr. Higgins, and Chapter I Coordinator, Natalie Timberlake, identified the following topics as most often being included in the feedback.

The M.E.A., Maine Educational Assessment, which is being conducted in Grade 8 at this time, has been a general community topic. The attendees asked for Timothy Crockett, a conference presenter, to return to make a presentation on M.E.A. for staff and the board of directors of the school district. Mr. Crockett is scheduled to return Nov. 8 to meet with staff members. The earliest board meeting he can attend is scheduled for Jan. 8.

Another popular presentation, "Teens 'n' Theatre," will return to make presentations before both middle and high school audiences. This group of students from Skowhegan High School is able to present student problems and possible solutions in an improvisational style. Their return will be sponsored by groups and departments within the district. Mr. Higgins noted that one of the programs available from the Cooperative Extension Service is training of local groups to conduct such dramatizations.

Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell would like to have calls from those who attended the conference and others who have interest in further classes or meetings on Attention Deficit Disorder, Reality Therapy, or other topics of the conference. Her office number is 824-2780.

Alternative Education created much interest and was labeled a "must" for this district in the near future. A plan for alternative programming is also a requirement under the School Reform law. Committee member Wendy Marcello spoke of two models of such programs that were presented at the recent International Symposium on Exceptional Youth. Locally, a proposal for an alternative education program was developed last year, and sponsors have discussed updating it.

Upton

By ARLINE BERNIER

Lori Collingwood was tendered a surprise baby shower by Lucy Nelson at the Nelson home. Guests included Norma Collingwood, Pat Lewitt, Terry Beauchese, Elsie Fuller, Cindy Scribner and Jas Collingwood, of Upton; Avis Beardsley, Nora Howlett, Donita Taylor, Laurie Swain, Kelly Walker, and Pauline Coolidge, of Bethel; Bryant Pond, Magalloway or Raymond. Sending gifts were Terry Beardsley, Joline Beardsley, Mary Ann Pappin and Pauline Lavallee.

The Planning Board met Monday evening with four members present. Several landowners were present with questions concerning their applications and were informed by Chairman Pat Angevine that she had contacted M.M.A. for help resolving the issues but had not received an answer. The meeting was recessed until Wednesday, at which time the same members met to discuss and take action upon advice received from Rebecca Seal of the legal services of Maine Municipal Association.

It is apparent that Upton needs a new Shoreland Zoning Ordinance and building code so as to have firm ground to work upon locally.

A special town meeting was held Tuesday evening with 28 voters present. Richard Lecomte was elected moderator. Constance Gagnon was elected to serve on the Board of Selectmen for the term ending 1990 and Pat Levitt was elected to serve on the board of selectmen for the term ending 1991. These positions became vacant following the resignations of Christen Angevine and Laurie French. It was also voted to transfer $2,000 from general revenue to the fire prevention account to cover an overdraft from the July forest fire.

The selectmen held a meeting at the town office. Richard Lecomte was chosen chairman for the remainder of the year. The members discussed the financial status of the town, the winter sand pile, general business and the upcoming election. Helen Jordan and Arline Bernier were chosen as ballot clerks.

can be developed in any district. These teams of staff members work together to assist individual students who are at risk. This training is available from DADES in November and May. There were many questions about whether this is the same as students-helping-students, or peer tutors.

The issues and search for solutions aroused by the Conference will be alive and active in SAD #44 throughout the coming months. Having an impact on the problems of students-at-risk is a goal for the administrative team this year. Development of more lasting follow-through and overall consideration of the implications from the conference will be the priority issue for their November and December meetings. During March and May meetings, progress, results, and further planning will be their agenda.

The workshop committee included Daniel Hart, Felix Otero-Otero, Wendy Marcello, Marie Hickey, Cathy Newell, Rodney Abbott, Nancy Davis, Ann Holt, Jan Whitworth, Terry Howard, Steve Keane, Elaine Suddeth and Bill Frederick. The personnel who made an excellent group of resources available for the day, came with services donated, except for the theater group, and their contribution to the district was much appreciated. A luncheon served at noon benefited the National Honor Society whose members assisted during the day.

ANDOVER LIBRARY has a proud history. The current building was built in 1899 and began life as a church. (Photo by Barbara Adams)

Andover Library is filled with history, plus 100,000 volumes

On Church Street in Andover, just a short distance from the modern post office and an elderly housing complex, stands the eight-sided Andover Public Library.

Since most of the early settlers in the town took pleasure in books, a library association was formed in East Andover, Dec. 14, 1795. It had some 60 members. Seventy-five books were purchased by the association after it organized. At that time the library was housed in a large home called the Homestead, on Route 5.

By 1843, however, due to disinterest, the passing away of some of the association members, and possibly the establishment of a post office and the ensuing influx of papers, the association was dissolved in 1843.

This situation was remedied in 1892 when local resident J. Parker Whitney stepped forward to bring back a library. "If the library proposed by me shall be made free for the inhabitants of Andover, subject to proper restrictions necessary for the protection of the library, I will give toward it $1,000." A pledge sheet was circulated and other donations were collected, allowing a room at the Town Hall to be converted as a library, with an inventory of 5,000 books. The rules for the library permitted only one book to be taken out at a time, and persons taking out books had to be at least 11 years of age.

In 1943, the library moved from Town Hall to the former Universalist Church. Harold and Millie Hodson, in 1941, promoted the idea of having the Universalist Church, built in 1899, deeded to the town for use as a library, since the building had not been used for a number of years. The Maine Universalist Convention was contacted, and two years later the property was deeded to the town with the provision that should it be used for

NOTES FROM Telstar Guidance

Dan Hart, junior/senior counselor at Telstar, has arranged for college-bound seniors to receive a special workshop on Wednesday, Nov. 1. Forty-five seniors will have the opportunity to learn more about the admissions process from five guest speakers.

Richard Gross, of Central Maine Technical College, will speak on financial aid and job placement; Steve Chandler, of Gould Academy, on comparing colleges (large vs. small, competitive vs. less competitive, public vs. private); Kathy Demers, of Lewiston/Auburn College, on what colleges look for in applicants; Elizabeth LaVallee, freshmen/sophomore counselor at Telstar, on the college essay; Chris Yardley, Upward Bound counselor at the University of Maine at Farmington, on social and academic adjustment to college; and Mr. Hart on the college application.

Many colleges are hosting open houses this fall. Just last week, many Maine colleges and universities participated in "Come-to-Campus Week," affording students of all ages an opportunity to tour campuses, view art exhibitions, athletic events and learn more about admissions procedures and financial aid.

On Friday, Nov. 10, Bates College in Lewiston is sponsoring Maine Day, a special opportunity for prospective seniors to tour the school, visit classes and have admissions interviews.

Testing is another important step in the college admissions process. Upcoming College Board test dates for seniors in this area are: Dec. 2, at Rumford High School, and Jan. 27, at Gould Academy. Telstar sophomores and juniors are also busy preparing for their futures, with SAT taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test on Saturday, Oct. 24, at Telstar.

Peer helper programs continue to grow at the high school. Mr. Hart currently is running three Self Groups, with 35-40 students attending weekly meetings. Fifteen guidance aides are beginning to orient themselves and their peers on the use of the new Tandy computer and Guidance Information System (G.I.S.) software. G.I.S. aides are: Becky White (senior); Ryan Bernier, Mike Conkright, Jennifer Felt, Cynthia Hammel, Heidi Moore, Kim York (juniors); and Jennifer Adams, Matthew Bean, Patrick Harrington, Dustin Howe, Robert Hutson, Michelle Inman, Derek Papineau, Brandy Russo (sophomores).

Also, the peer tutor program is now fully implemented under the supervision of home economics teacher Vanessa Hutchins and Bridget Remington. With the end of the quarter drawing near, peer tutor teams have been very busy preparing for end-of-term finals.

One more peer helper program has been newly added to the Guidance program. Elizabeth LaVallee, in her first year as freshmen/sophomore counselor, is the new coordinator of those students who participated in the NTL Gould/Telstar leadership conference last year and again this fall. A follow-up

Who said we wouldn't have any Indian Summer this year? Frosty mornings but temperatures in the 60s and low 70s during the day.

I spent a Sunday recently with the Adams family in Hanover. Last Friday I went to daughter Ethel's in Oisfield. On Saturday, with her family, we spent the day at the Norlands farm in Livermore. I came home Monday afternoon.

Saturday visitors of Mrs. Elmira Doyen were Ms. Ann Gardner of Waterford, Weston Flint and Mrs. Winona Verrill of So. Paris, and John Hindman of Windham was an overnight guest. Mrs. Phyllis Bancroft was home from her work in Norway one day this week due to illness. Bill is feeling some better after his recent bouts with infection and hepatitis. They enjoyed supper Thursday night with the Ed Gardners in Waterford, his sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parsons were in Lewiston Thursday for his medical appointment.

On Friday Jack and Eleanor with his sister Mrs. Dorothy Kilgore of Harrison were in Lewiston where the ladies had appointments.

Mrs. Christine Kimball left Thursday morning for her home in Florida. Her daughter, Mrs. Deanna Andrews of Auburn, accompanied her. The John Kimball family will live in Christine's home here this winter.

workshop is planned for Thursday, Nov. 9, at Sunday River. Students involved in this peer helper group are: Aaron Bean, Amy Brindley, Solai Buchanan, Joshua Chamberlin, Dawn Davis, Kris Delano, Nathan Emery, Cindy Fittell, Noelle Gauthier, Robert Hand, Scott Higgins, Wendy Paulkingham, Gena Morgan, Carrie Olson, Meredith Otten, Kristen Powell and Ryan Wheeler.

The month of November has been designated as National Career Development Month. Mr. Hart and Mrs. LaVallee have some special activities planned in observance of this. Details to follow in future news articles.

Mr. Hart is past-president this year of the Maine Association for Counseling and Development. In this role he has been asked to speak at various functions across the state. He recently was keynote speaker at the Maine Educational Secretaries conference in Portland. He spoke on the topic of child abuse and the role of the school secretary. On Nov. 10, he will speak on the Crisis Intervention Team Model at the Maine Mental Health Counselors Association Conference, in Rockland.

Two important upcoming dates for Telstar students and parents to be aware of are: Nov. 3—end of the first quarter, and Nov. 9—Open House at Telstar (7-8:30 p.m.), rank cards will be available.

A THANK YOU
I want to thank all of my friends, relatives and my lovely children for my surprise 90th birthday party. It was just lovely.
God bless you all.

Sheep farmer/diplomat to lecture at Gould on US/USSR Peace Fleece

Peter Hagerty of Kezar Falls had a dream. He wanted to actually do something that would bring the peoples of the Soviet Union and the United States together to start the ice melting in the cold war.

He did so in a most entrepreneurial way. And at Gould Academy's Bingham Auditorium on Wednesday evening, Nov. 15, Peter Hagerty will present a fascinating program that may melt the ice even further. In 1985, Mr. Hagerty, with the help and encouragement of his wife Marty, began seeking ways to expand his sheep-raising business by combining his product with the product of other sheep farms. But his idea had a different wrinkle. He saw the opportunity to make inroads on his dream of bringing Russian and American people together in mutual understanding, believing that if common people could only come to know each other's fears and dreams, progress toward peace in the world could begin.

His idea had to do with combining the fleeces of Russian and American sheep into a product he called Peace Fleece. At first Mr. Hagerty launched his project through correspondence with some sheep farmers in the Soviet Union. It came as no surprise to him that the walls of bureaucracy were stronger than his writing skills, which motivated him to take his idea to the Russian people in person.

In August 1985 he made the journey to Moscow and met with startling success both with the farmers and the Ministry of Agriculture. Eight months later, 1,200 pounds of Russian wool arrived at Peter's farm, followed by a second shipment shortly thereafter.

Since then, the joint project has become enormously successful, both from the standpoint of bringing citizens of the Soviet Union and America closer together as well as creating a way for sheep farmers from both nations to ply their wares.

The program at Gould Academy is sponsored jointly by the school and Mainly Fibers—a local shop that carries the product on its shelves. The presentation on Nov. 15 starts at 7:30 p.m. and is open to the public at no charge.

News from

Woodstock School

Mrs. Smith's Kindergarten class at Woodstock made pumpkin cookies and is busy decorating them with candy corn, raisins and chocolate chips.

The Woodstock School will hold its annual Open House on Tuesday, Nov. 6, 6:30-8 p.m. Families and friends are encouraged to attend and visit our classrooms.

Our annual book fair will also be going on in the multipurpose room. Parents and students can use this opportunity to purchase books for Christmas presents. Books n' Things will provide the books for the fair. If you are interested in a certain book, please call the school office by Friday, Nov. 3, at 665-2229, and it will be ordered for you.

Refreshments will be provided by the W.P.T.O.

The Krackerjack Theater held students spellbound at the Woodstock School last week with their fantastic performance of Silverstein's Stew. Students enjoyed listening to their favorite poems and stories by Shel Silverstein, as acted out by members of the Krackerjack Theater.

Shel Silverstein is the author of such children's favorites as "Where the Sidewalk Ends" and "A Light in the Attic."

Funds for this presentation came from the students' recent successful walk-a-thon, which grossed over $3,000 for special events at the Woodstock School.

David Murphy, principal of the Woodstock School, was recently elected to his second year on the board of directors for the Maine Parent Teachers Association. Mr. Murphy also serves on the education committee of that organization. A strong proponent of parental involvement in schools, Mr. Murphy has played an active role in the Woodstock Parent Teacher Organization and, together with the Woodstock staff, has continually sought ways to bring the school and community together for various projects and events.

In addition to his involvement in the Maine P.T.A., Mr. Murphy also serves on the board of directors for Maine Lead, and on the executive committee for the Maine Elementary Principals' Association. In 1987 he was named Maine's National Distinguished Principal by the National Association of Elementary School Principals.

Mr. Murphy resides in Bethel with his wife Nancy and their two children, Billy and Erin.

Parent-teacher conferences will be held at the Woodstock School on Monday, Nov. 13, 12-8 p.m. School will not be in session that day. Mr. Murphy will be sending home sign-up sheets for any parent requiring a special conference time. We look forward to seeing all parents that day.

A 55-gallon aquarium, filled with beautiful fish and other sea life, is the most recent addition to the Woodstock School. Responsibilities for the aquarium are shared between Sarah Hart and Siri Cressey, Grade 6, Kellie Hart, WES custodian, and Mr. Murphy, Grade 3 teacher. Mrs. Ellen Greke, our resident fish expert, has agreed to act as our "consultant." All children from Kindergarten through Grade 6 have enjoyed this recent addition. We hope you'll stop by and take a peek during our Monday, Nov. 6 Open House from 6:30-8 p.m.

The school photos have arrived. Parents who had pre-school pictures taken, please come into the school office and pick them up if you haven't already done so.

By MARTA CLEMENTS

News from the kindergarten classes this week includes preparations for Halloween. They have been coloring, cutting and putting together all sorts of monsters, bats, and anything else that is in season. They have been learning the letter E. Thanks go to Mrs. Knox, a parent volunteer who came in to assist Mrs. Howes. Having an extra person to help individuals form and write their new letter makes a big difference.

The 1st-graders are busy. They are looking forward to seeing their picture in The Citizen showing some of their fall collections. They are continuing to collect and classify. They have been doing art projects. Our art teacher, Mrs. Constant, showed them how to make Halloween spiders using crayons and black paper. These spiders are now hanging from the pipes all over the room. Another art project, autumn trees, are on display. They are made from torn paper and create some colorful pictures of fall. The poem for the week is Little Leaf. The class will be cutting a Jack-O-Lantern for another room decoration. No doubt the seeds will fit into a math lesson.

Following the Halloween theme into reading, the class is working on a finger play called Five Little Pumpkins. In arithmetic, Spook House Math with lima bean ghosts is providing another counting and addition, subtraction practice. Some ghosts go into the spook house and some come out. Children have to count and figure how many are left inside.

The 2nd-graders are working on the numbers 8 and 9. They are learning the fact families and working on addition and subtraction. In social studies they have all literally pinpointed their homes on a map of West Paris.

For a Halloween writing project Mrs. Perham is working on descriptive writing. They had to describe their Halloween costume, without giving away what it actually was, until the very end. Holly Graiver is the special student of the week.

The 3rd-graders are figuring out why squirrels live in trees. They are continuing their social studies unit on tables and graphs and are starting their dental health unit. This includes studying about the mouth and teeth, good dental care and participating in the fluoride program.

The 4th-graders are finishing up their study of electricity. Several samples of circuitry have been brought in.

This week's portion of Maine Studies finds the class looking at fishing along the Maine coast. They are learning about clamming, scalloping, lobstering and trawling and the importance of this industry in Maine's past and present.

The 5th-graders have spent the week wondered what on earth had happened. We soon found out.

Sorry, this news is all from last week. Guess everyone is getting ready for the cold weather festivities coming along in the next two months.

Fred Haines found a balloon in the woods on Oct. 26. It came from Nikki Ferguson, a student at Evans Mills, N.Y., Elementary School, Jefferson County, near Lake Ontario.

Tutors for adults needed

Adult education programs in Western Maine are in need of tutors to work as volunteers with adults needing help with basic reading, writing, and math skills.

Programs in Livermore Falls, Bethel and Rangeley are joining forces with the University of Maine's Staff Development Office to sponsor the Maine Tutor Training Model on three Fridays in November and December.

The 18-hour course prepares adults to work with students from a beginning reading level through those reading below an 8th Grade level, and is taught by Dot McMahon of the Bangor Learning Center.

Those interested in tutoring in any area adult education or literacy program are welcome to attend.

The course will be held Nov. 17, Dec. 1, and Dec. 15 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Rumford-Mexico Center of UMF, Congress Street, in Rumford. To enroll, call SAD #44 Adult and Community Education, 824-2780.

FRIENDS OF ANDROSCOGGIN

The Friends of the Androscoggin will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 8, instead of Nov. 7, at 7 p.m. at Telstar Regional High School, according to President Steve Wight. Agenda items will include updates on a number of ongoing projects, particularly access sites to the river, as well as a report on the annual bottle held in Sept. Anyone with an interest in the Androscoggin River is invited to attend.

Testing. On Monday they took the first unit test in reading. On Wednesday they took the first unit test in science. Spelling tests are every Friday, so maybe that doesn't count. Poetry was advanced to Thursday due to special events on Friday.

Friday morning found Grades 4-6 taking a short field trip to Hebron Academy. We were allowed to use their track for the mile-run, which is part of our physical education and physical fitness program. Friday afternoon Mr. Vernon Inman, from the Paris Post Office, visited the 5th Grade and the Benjamin Franklin Stamp Club with a stamp presentation, October is stamp-collecting month. More on this next week.

The 6th-graders are working hard in all subject areas. They, too, have been testing. Both spelling and science tests were given on Friday. Of course, the mile run got the blood circulating, so they could think extra well.

On Tuesday, Oct. 24, a meeting for parents whose children participate in the Chapter 1 Special Reading Program was held in the library. Mrs. Cynthia Kirchherr, Mr. Greg Grigsby and our principal, Mr. Koch, were present to discuss various components of the program. Parents also had a chance to ask questions. They were also encouraged to share ideas, suggestions and concerns that they might have.

By COLISTA MORGAN

This has been a beautiful week... almost like summer. I walked the Bulldozer Road once more and on the hill up back. I went up the rugged slope to the ridge where the pine-scented air was ringing with musical trills, and because of the previous rain there was sound of turbulence dashing down a stream. This wouldn't last long, but today it was chattering and bright. It sparkled beneath the sunshine in a cloudless sky and tranquil leaf-covered hills. So I felt deep content and peace.

Another time I travelled the country road. Those who see the countryside only as they rush by on the highway miss the chance to enjoy nature at its serene best and to make more discoveries in an hour than they might in a year. In my lifetime, some of the moments I treasure most were spent strolling along country roads, with bordering fences and unspoiled abundance of flowers and grass. It was so warm that some insects traveled with me. I even saw a mosquito. I was greeted by the sound of a woodpecker using his hammer and chisel. I wondered if it could be the same one I see so often at my suet feeder. Woodpeckers in general have been accused of damaging trees by their incessant hammering, but they are interested chiefly in wood already rotten, which is where most of their prey lives. Even their nesting tree may look sound from the outside but is almost certainly decaying inside the trunk.

The world is a book and he who stays inside from woods and streams reads only one page.

The Tuesday Club met this week with Fay Holt at her home. All came except Zilpha DiArenzo who had another appointment.

On Monday, Aarne Jarvenpaa and I went to Yarmouth to see Evelyn Tamminen.

Bena Curtis went with several members of her family on a camping trip and foliage drive to the mountains last weekend. Then the first of this week her son Carl drove her to Ohio for a visit with her son Kenneth and wife Helen.

My callers were David and Mary Holt, Norway; Ernest Mundt, Bethel.

I was sorry to hear of the death of a close friend and Gould classmate, Irene Abbott Leibold, of Bridgton, last Wednesday.

Mary Holt called me by phone on Thursday morning just as the sun was rising at her home. She had to describe it to me and to ask if I could see it. I could not for it hadn't come over Noyes Mountain.

A number of geese settled on the pond on Thursday morning. They didn't stay long for a hunter took a shot at them. I was glad they all escaped.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our appreciation for the excellent service received from the DEARS. Their quick response and kind attitude made the difficult situation much easier to endure. Special thanks to friends and family who sent cards, flowers and those who visited me while I was in the hospital.

Thanks again.

REPORT FROM ALBANY CHURCH

An official of the Albany Church recently sent in the following report.

Members and friends of the Albany Congregational Church enjoyed another summer season, beginning with an evening memorial service on May 21, and closing on Sept. 24 with a dinner following the service.

We were grateful to again have as pastor, the Rev. Norman Rust, to lead our Sunday morning worship services and offer communion the first Sunday of each month. Organist Edna Bean York arranged a great deal of special music. We appreciate her time and that of those who shared their talent with us. Edna also conducted a very inspiring service while Rev. and Mrs. Rust were away visiting son Brian.

Many from the church joined friends to celebrate the Rusts' 25th wedding anniversary in June.

The Ladies Benevolent Society had another busy summer with four well-attended suppers in July and August, each accompanied by a food and craft sale. The Diocese also held a supper in September. We are again most grateful to all who support these events and to Christine Kimball who works so hard to coordinate the suppers.

Church grounds were again maintained by Kathy and Dick Bennett and family and Carleton Rugg. Their dedication in these matters is greatly appreciated, as is Ruth Bumpus for typing.

The Albany Township Scholarship Fund is growing through donations from the church, circle, diocese, friends and members of the church.

The church this summer acquired ownership of the Grange Hall next door to the church and plans are being made to make necessary repairs.

At the annual Church Meeting, Oct. 11, members voted to continue to support several missions, including Bangor Theological Seminary, the Heifer Project, Pilgrim Lodge, Our Christian World Mission, an African mission, Telstar's Project Graduation and Rockcraft Lodge. "Voices," in Bethel, was added to our mission projects.

The church gratefully acknowledged a generous donation left by Verna Kimball Robinson in her estate in memory of her parents, Leon and Ruth Kimball, of Albany.

Church officers were elected as follows: president, Jane Wardwell; vice president, Christine Kimball; clerk, Jean Reynolds; treasurer, Eileen Keniston; trustee, Hugh Stearns; organist and historian, Edna York; Diaconate members for three years, Elizabeth Scribner and Margaret Barton; Christian Education Committee, Margaret Barton, Kathy Bennett and Pamela Rugg; Conference Association delegates, Margaret Barton and Jane Wardwell; alternates, Mary Keniston, Edna York and Doris Fraser.

The annual Church Christmas Wreath Sale is planned for Saturday, Dec. 2, at the Casco Bank, in Bethel. We thank Elizabeth Scribner, Diaconate president, for again agreeing to coordinate the sale. Crafts and food will also be available, as well as stationary with a drawing of the church (graciously donated by Helen Morton) and enlarged drawings of the church.

The annual Community Christmas Party will be held at the church on Sunday, Dec. 10, with a potluck supper at 5 p.m., followed by a program and anticipated visit from Santa Claus. Guests are reminded to bring place settings and food to share. Newcomers with children ages 12 and younger are asked to contact Santa via Jean Reynolds, at 824-2533. We hope to see old friends and make new friends during this time of sharing and celebration.

Chamber sponsoring 'turkey trot' Nov. 18

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce will hold a turkey trot Nov. 18, at Gould Academy. There will be 30 races, one for each grade (boys and girls separate), K-12, plus four races for adults, one walking and a short run for men and women. That adds up to 30 turkeys that will be the first-place prize in each race.

Only SAD #44 residents will be eligible to win turkeys, although anyone can participate. The races will be of varying lengths, from the 50-yard dash for the youngest tots, on up. The adult races will be for the non-competitive joggers or walkers who have never raced before.

There will be ribbons and prizes for all competitors. Sponsors of the event are Hannaford Bros., Sunday River Ski Resort, Coca-Cola Bottling and Bethel Savings Bank. Any other businesses that want to be a part of this true community event should call the Chamber office, 824-2282.

Open House Thursday at middle and high schools

Telstar Regional High School and Telstar Middle School extend a cordial invitation to the community to attend the first open house of the 1989-90 school year, to be held on Thursday, Nov. 9, 7:30-8:30 p.m.

The agenda for the high school that evening is as follows:

- Students' rank cards and a map of the building may be picked up in the corridor outside the high school office as you come into the building.

- High school staff will be in their rooms to meet with parents from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

The agenda for the Middle School will be as follows:

- Everyone will meet in the Telstar auditorium at 7 p.m. for a general program to talk about Middle School concepts and programs.

- Report cards will be available to parents at the end of the general session. They may be picked up at the tables in the corridor just outside the middle school office. Parents who are unable to attend the open house but would like to pick up their child's report card, may do so between 7:30-8:30 p.m., in the middle school office.

Refreshments will be available for everyone in the corridor area outside the library.

EBS proposes holding Mountain Day at skiway

SAD #44 Board members have received an initial proposal from the Ethel Bisbee school for a Mountain Day, to be held Feb. 7.

In order to teach 1st and 2nd-graders about local industry and community workers, and to encourage physical, life, and motor skills, it has been proposed that the children go to Sunday River on Mountain Day, accompanied by Junior Kindergarten children.

There they will rent skis, boots and poles, Grades 1 and 2 will take part in a SkiWee lesson, and they—along with kindergarten students—will ride the trolley.

They will be accompanied by teachers, parents and volunteers. Fund-raising for the event will be a total school project, and a large thermometer will be placed in the hall of the Bisbee school so the children can record the progress of the fund-raising.

The principal will also contact appropriate parent/community volunteers and develop a "Bisbee Mountain Day" logo, and determine the cost of getting T-shirts and/or patches for students who participate in the event.

The school will make a donation to the Sunday River Handicapped Skiing program and will provide a share of the cost of the T-shirts and/or patch.

Registration is $35 and must be completed Friday, Nov. 10. The workshop seminar will be held at Goldcrest Restaurant, Main Street, in South Paris. Sen. Mitchell says...

On Oct. 4, by a margin of 91 to 9, the Senate approved legislation to protect the American flag by providing a penalty against physical abuse or destruction of the flag for any purpose. On Oct. 19, the Senate rejected a proposed amendment to the Constitution to prohibit flag desecration. I strongly supported the legislation protecting the integrity of the American flag against abuse and mutilation. I strongly opposed amending the American Constitution. I believe we can support the American flag without changing the American Constitution.

The legislation passed by the Senate, and later by the House of Representatives, corrected a shortcoming in the federal flag law similar to a shortcoming in the Texas v. Johnson earlier this summer. The Senate action was an effective and timely response to a flag-burning incident that occurred in 1984. It reasserts our national belief that wanton destruction of our nation's symbol, the American flag, is wrong.

The legislation does not seek to shape or direct speech, nor does it overturn a Supreme Court judgment by legislation. Instead, it corrects the weakness a divided Court found in the similar Texas statute, where the penalty for vandalism was conditioned on the offensiveness of the action. The bill makes the prohibited conduct illegal, not its offensiveness or intent.

The Freedom of Speech clause of the First Amendment to the Constitution explicitly protects the right of all Americans to speak freely. It says nothing about actions. The speech provision of the Constitution protects the rights of Americans to say things, but does not create a right to do things.

The Supreme Court has both limited and expanded the First Amendment's protection. The Court has imposed restrictions on some forms of speech by applying a common sense principle that is essential to preserve a civil society with free speech. Clearly, no First Amendment right would protect a statement by an airplane passenger that he was about to explode a bomb, even if his purpose was to call attention to his political views.

The Court has expanded First Amendment protection to include certain actions, which the Court calls "symbolic speech" or "expressive conduct." The Court has reasoned that certain actions are closely related to speech and should be regarded as a form of speech, particularly where political ideas are involved. In those cases involving action, the

from the symbols and traditions of our nation.

Yet we are being asked to believe that the flag, which neither Hitler nor Stalin could defeat, is now threatened by a single misguided person who most Americans never heard of and don't care about.

We are better than that. Both our flag and our people are stronger than that.

We can best protect our flag by passing a law, as the Congress has already done. We can best honor our Bill of Rights by leaving it alone, securing the liberties of each and every American.

Those are two principles on which all Americans can and should agree.

from the symbols and traditions of our nation.

Yet we are being asked to believe that the flag, which neither Hitler nor Stalin could defeat, is now threatened by a single misguided person who most Americans never heard of and don't care about.

We are better than that. Both our flag and our people are stronger than that.

We can best protect our flag by passing a law, as the Congress has already done. We can best honor our Bill of Rights by leaving it alone, securing the liberties of each and every American.

Those are two principles on which all Americans can and should agree.
